

Papers signed

Arkansas Gov. David H. Pryor signed extradition papers Monday for two Oklahoma prison escapees being held in Portland, Ore., on suspicion of killing six persons in three states.

Earl Van Denton, 27, and Paul Ruiz, 29, have been charged with capital murder in the slaying of Marshal Marvin Richie of Magazine, Ark., and Army Engineers park ranger Opal James of Havana, Ark.

Groucho grinning

Groucho Marx is waving his eyebrows at nurses and grinning again, and hospital spokesmen said Monday the 86-year-old comedian may be well enough to go home by the end of the week.

"He's starting to do whatever it is he does with his eyebrows," said Larry Baum, spokesman for Cedars-Sinai Medical center in Los Angeles.

Marx has been showing steady improvement since he was admitted on June 24 with a mild form of pneumonia, just a day after he had been released following hip surgery, Baum said.

Exit visa denied

Jewish scientist Benjamin Levich, who has been refused permission to emigrate to Israel for five years, has been denied an exit visa to attend a conference in his honor at Oxford University, he told reporters in Moscow Monday.

Levich, 60, is the highest-ranking scientist to ask to emigrate. Soviet officials have refused on the grounds he possesses secret information, despite a report to the contrary from the Soviet Academy of Sciences, of which he is a corresponding member.

Barnard quitting

Pioneering heart transplant surgeon Dr. Christiaan Barnard said Monday a severe arthritic condition in his hands will force him to give up practicing surgery.

"I have had great trouble with my hands," Barnard said.

Chancellor signs

John Chancellor has a new long-term contract with NBC and will continue as co-anchor with David Brinkley on the "NBC Nightly News" program, the network announced Monday.

Terms of the agreement were unavailable, but a network spokesman said it was good for "more than three years."

Onassis divorced

Christina Onassis, principal heiress to the fortune of shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis, and Alexandros Andreadis have been granted a divorce by an Athens court and the Orthodox Church of Greece, sources close to the families said Monday.

They said the joint divorce petition was granted Saturday on grounds of incompatibility after two years of marriage.

Judge can find no slander in 'Scottsboro Boys' movie

Winchester, Tenn. (UPI) — A federal judge Monday dismissed Victoria Price Street's claim that a National Broadcasting Co. movie on the "Scottsboro Boys" slandered her and invaded her privacy. He said he would let the jury decide her charge of libel.

In her $6 million suit, Mrs. Street claimed NBC libeled her, slandered her and invaded her privacy with "Judge Horton and the Scottsboro Boys." She said the movie portrayed her as a "scarlet woman" whose claim of being raped by nine black youths in 1931 was questionable.

NBC attorneys Monday afternoon asked for directed verdict of acquittal on all three counts. Ruling in his chambers, District Judge C. G. Neese granted the motions for acquittal on charges of slander and invasion of privacy but said he would let the jury decide whether Mrs. Street was libeled, attorneys said.

His ruling had not been announced to the jury, which was once again shown the movie in question.

The replay of the movie followed testimony by Dan T.

Carter, author of a book on the "Scottsboro Boys" that was the basis for NBC's movie.

Carter, an Emory University professor who wrote "Scottsboro: A Tragedy of the American South" as his doctoral dissertation, testified he spent more than two years researching the case and wanted only to "see the truth come out."

Mrs. Street contends she and another white woman were raped by the nine black "Scottsboro Boys" on March 25, 1931.

Fiat executive ransomed unharmed

Paris (UPI) — The head of Fiat in France and Brazil, kidnaped by self-styled revolutionaries 89 days ago, was found smiling and safe on a park bench in Versailles Monday following payment of an undisclosed ransom by his family.

Lucino Revelli-Beaumont, 58, was described by police as well but exhausted. His captivity began April 13 when he was snatched by four men in front of his luxurious Paris Apartment and held for millions of dollars in ransom.

Following directions from an anonymous telephone tipster, police found Revelli-Beaumont seated on a bench in a tiny square near the former royal palace in Versailles, about 15 miles from Paris.

Squinting in the first daylight he had seen in nearly three months, the smiling silver-haired Fiat executive greeted police without a word, officers said.

Revelli-Beaumont's son, Paolo, told a news conference the family paid a ransom for his father's release. For security reasons, however, he refused to reveal the amount of the ransom or how the money was delivered.

The kidnapers at first demanded $30 million in ransom, but later lowered the amount to $8 million.

Police doctors who examined Revelli-Beaumont said they found him in good health. His family took him to a hospital for a complete examination and a long rest, police said.

Minutes after his release, the "Committee for Socialist Revolutionary Unity," which claimed responsibility for the kidnaping, warned it will go on fighting until all business tycoons, judges and police "had been made accountable to the working class."

Judiciary police announced Monday night all police services in France have received a photograph of one of the four kidnapers.

Police are holding former Dominican Republic diplomat Hector Aristy, a friend of Revelli-Beaumont's family, on charges of having been implicated in the kidnaping. Aristy was arrested last month.

Carter dealt setback

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Monday handed President Carter a major setback in his bid for a worldwide halt of plutonium production, rejecting his effort to discontinue the Clinch River nuclear breeder reactor project.

Carter wanted to limit new funds for the plutonium-producing reactor at Oak Ridge, Tenn., to $33 million, enough to complete design work and phase out the project.

That effort was defeated by a 49-38 vote.

But proponents of the project, led by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, pressed for a compromise $75 million authorization which would allow the project to remain in its current status and retain key scientific personnel. Church's proposal was adopted by voice vote immediately after the Carter position was rejected.

The authorization bill for the Energy Research and Development Administration included $150 million for Clinch River, the same amount budgeted by former President Gerald Ford, but Church and other supporters wanted that cut in half in hopes of avoiding a Carter veto.

"We will hold in abeyance Clinch River without giving any signal," Church said, claiming it would not hinder Carter's effort to win an international nonproliferation agreement.

But Sens. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., who led the administration argument, and Spark Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, warned of a future in a plutonium economy.

"If we don't (end proliferation) we'll have to abandon this planet and seek other planets," Matsunaga said.

Bumpers called Carter's stand "a very bold step" and said it was necessary to prevent "incineration of the world."

The Clinch River vote was a double setback for the administration because the Senate earlier voted to appropriate $14 million for the Barnwell, S.C., nuclear fuel reprocessing plant, a device designed also to produce plutonium.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., was defeated, 69 to 23, in his effort to eliminate all but $1 million of the $14 million appropriation and restrict that to a study.

Earlier in the day, William H. Young, vice president of the architect-engineer firm for the Clinch River plant, told a Senate subcommittee he was being "speculative" in a 1973 memo calling Oak Ridge "one of the worst sites ever selected for a nuclear power plant."

"I believe that the Clinch River design is both safe and appropriate," Young testified, "that the project is timely and absolutely necessary, and that excellent progress has been achieved in the past four years by a devoted national technical team... in the face of many adverse circumstances."

School chiefs urged to fix two budgets

The president of the Nebraska State School Boards Association is urging local school boards to prepare two different budgets this summer.

J. Paul McIntosh said that school boards should be aware they may not receive as much money from the state as expected.

McIntosh's warning came after opponents of LB33 announced last week a petition drive to repeal the additional $20 million for next year included in the state aid to schools bill.

Bird carvings to be displayed

Dr. Paul A. Johnsgard, professor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, will display duck decoys and lifesize carvings of birds this month on second floor of Love Library, 13th and R Sts.

Johnsgard, an expert on waterfowl, also will have eight books he has written on birds and wildlife at the library.

The display includes about 20 pieces, including life-size figures of ducks and geese, a swan and a massive figure of an owl perched on a piece of driftwood.

LB33 on the ballot, but the vote to repeal that bill fails.

If the Department of Education should distribute the money to schools in 1977-78 on the basis of the formula in the School Foundation and Equalization Act, the distribution will have been made on the wrong basis, Rasmussen said. The intent of the petition drive is to reduce the state funding back to its former level of $55 million annually and revert to the original formula for distributing the money.

New industries North Platte aim

North Platte (AP) — The City of North Platte is asking the North West Regional Commission for a $5,000 grant that officials hope would help attract new industry and create 250 new industrial jobs by 1981.

The North Platte Development Corp. would use the grant to design, print and mail direct-mail brochures to 2,000 "target industries," according to Chamber of Commerce Manager Gary Toeppen.

The city will need new industry to stop a large out-migration of workers when construction of both units at the Gerald Gentleman power plant near Sutherland is completed in late 1981, Toeppen said.

U.S. peddling death—Thone

Rep. Charles Thone, R-Ne., said Monday America has become "a death merchant" because of military arms sales to other countries.

America has become "an arms peddler" in the Middle East where both sides are being armed, Thone said.

The foreign military assistance authorization bill now in a House-Senate conference committee would earmark $1.3 billion in arms for Israel and $0.9 billion to Egypt, Syria and Jordan.

"I voted against this $3 billion rip-off of the American taxpayers when it was before the House," he said.

Thone said it is up to Congress to stop indiscriminate giveaway programs that are spreading U.S. weapons around the world. President Carter hasn't followed through on his campaign promises to cut down on arms sales, Thone charged.

Thone also blasted U.S. arms being given to African countries surrounding Rhodesia.

Hastings appeal questions ruling

Hastings (AP) — The City of Hastings has appealed to District Court a Civil Service Commission ruling concerning the employment of two animal control officers.

The commission ruled in late May that Glenn Wolfe and Dean Doctor had not resigned their position because they had not signed resignation letters. The city unsuccessfully argued the two had given oral resignations.

The court has not set a hearing date.

Hastings man committed to regional center

Hastings (AP) — A Hastings man was committed to the Lincoln Regional Center Monday by Adams County District Court Judge Norris Chadderdon.

Chadderdon found Robert Rupprecht, 24, to be a sexual sociopath and ordered him committed to an indefinite term.

Rupprecht pleaded guilty in February to one count of child stealing and one count of indecent exposure in connection with an incident last October which involved a 5-year-old girl.

Since March, Rupprecht has been held at the Lincoln Regional Center for evaluation.

20-year prison sentence came after usual wait

By Michael Holmes
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

York — The final hours before Ricky Johnson was sentenced Monday to 20 years in prison were similar to the previous two and one-half months. The 17-year-old waited.

At times alone in his cell, at times talking with parents and attorneys, the high school junior could only wait to be summoned.

So it was during the eight weeks between his arrest an hour after York policeman James M. Richardson II was killed and the start of his trial. So it was during the eight days in the still courtroom heat as his trial moved toward conclusion.

A long wait was the nearly eight hours before the jury returned its verdict: guilty of second degree murder.

He waited last Friday, the day he was to be sentenced, as his lawyers filed a motion seeking a new trial.

He waited until 10 a.m. Monday for arguments on that motion to begin. He waited until 2:15 p.m. for a final affidavit to be submitted on his behalf.

Dressed in a white, cowboy-style shirt like those he favored during his trial, Johnson watched defense attorney John Brogan and Deputy County Attorney Vince Valentino argue the motion.

Brogan urged District Judge William Norton to dismiss the guilty verdict. Valentino argued that the verdict was based on facts, logic and common sense and should be upheld.

Johnson would wait longer, until 4:37 p.m., when Norton said: No.

Just after 4 p.m., the slight youth with light brown hair scraping his shirt collar, made a familiar walk.

Up he walked: up three flights of creaking wooden stairs to wait outside the courtroom. He visited quietly with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gayle Johnson, before being called into court.

There, after hearing that his new trial motion had failed, he waited again.

Seconds passed, and Johnson was summoned to stand before the polished wooden bench.

The youth's hands were crossed in front of him as Norton spoke:

"Mr. Johnson . . . do you have anything to say?"

"No, I do not."

Norton told him he had considered the youth's age, and potential for rehabilitation, but said he also considered the fact "that a life was taken and a price must be paid."

Norton then said it was his order that Ricky A. Johnson "be confined to the Nebraska State Penal Complex for 20 years at hard labor."

Brogan told the court an appeal would be filed as Johnson looked on.

One wait was over. Perhaps the longest, just begun.

Exon meets with Carter, unhappy with farm stand

By Lynn Zerschling
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon voiced disappointment Monday over President Carter's position on a number of farm related issues.

"One of the problems we have," Exon said, "is that although President Carter is a peanut farmer from Georgia, he doesn't fully understand agriculture in the Midwest where farming is much more diversified." That diversity ranges from crop production to livestock.

Exon met with the president and his aides in Washington, D.C., Friday and Saturday discussing both energy and agricultural concerns.

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland "certainly understands the situation," Exon said. However, Exon added, "I suspect that Secretary Bergland is under some type of wraps from administration sources, certainly from the fiscal people who deal with the budget."

"We're all interested in balancing the budget," Exon said.

But, without a healthy farm economy, the rest of the country will be in financial trouble, he said.

Another statement by President Carter also disturbed the governor.

When Carter said that most cattle will be primarily grass-fed rather than grain-fed in the next five to ten years, Exon said he interrupted the President for clarification. The President said his statement reflected administration predictions and was not the administration's policy.

Exon said, however, that it is "completely inconsistent" for the administration to say cattle will have to be grass-fed while at the same time "to be talking about the glut in wheat and feed grains." The governor said livestock is a combination of grass and grain.

And, besides, Exon said, there's not enough grass in the country to feed all the cattle.

"We certainly would have a shortage of grass if we went to grass-fed beef," he predicted.

Exon said considerable emphasis was placed on energy conservation at the weekend meeting. However, he said he didn't think enough time was spent discussing different uses of resources and new energy forms.

It was at Exon's urging that the president's energy advisor James Schlesinger and Federal Energy Administration Chief John O'Leary discussed gasohol production.

In response to Exon's question, Schlesinger said the administration is considering the production of gasohol as one of the number of long-term answers to energy shortages.

However, O'Leary said the administration is reviewing both the production of the fuel mix from either ethanol (produced from grain) or methanol (produced from wood and waste products.)

Gasohol is made from blending one part ethanol with nine parts gasoline to run automobiles.

Charge is reduced

Hebron — A felony charge against Pash Hendershot, accused of shooting his adult son in a June 27th argument was reduced to a misdemeanor Monday after plea bargaining.

The 89-year old defendant then entered a plea of no contest following a preliminary hearing in Thayer county court. Associate Judge Robert Stutz scheduled sentencing for August 8.

Court officials said the original charge of "shooting with intent to kill, wound or maim" carried a penalty of one to fifty years. The misdemeanor charge of unlawful assault calls for imprisonment up to six months or a fine up to $500.

The defendant also agreed to undergo psychiatric evaluation. Represented by Hebron Atty. Lyle Koenig, he is free on a personal signature bond.

Equipment cost may rise
Hastings (UPI) — The City of Hastings may have to pay $11,000 more than originally planned for a communications console at the proposed city-county communications center.

The city originally had planned to buy the equipment from Central Nebraska Emergency Medical Services, a group that had bought several of the consoles for $31,000 each. The group agreed to sell the equipment to the city for $31,000, compared to the average retail price of $42,000 for similar equipment.

However, city ordinances require any purchase of more than $3,000 to be offered for bid, and a second firm has asked the city to open the purchase to bid.

Welcome rain halts harvest

Rains were general over eastern and central Nebraska during the weekend, halting the wheat harvest but bringing welcome relief to corn, sorghum and soybeans.

"The rain came too late for early planted corn. If we get continued rains it could save the sorghum and the soybeans, but it will have to rain regularly because we have no subsoil moisture whatever," said Marvin Green, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office manager at Auburn.

Green said Monday the rain brought in a rush of farmers to apply for drought programs and request permission to chop corn for feed.

"There just isn't any hay or pasture here now. Some people have already sold their cattle and a few have had their wells go dry," he said.

"The rain made a major difference in grain sorghum. It is back to normal, but the early corn won't make more than 25 bushels an acre at best in some fields," predicted Cyril Bish, Lancaster County agent.

"The rain came too late for corn, but it could save the sorghum and soybeans. We must have had between 1.5 and two inches over the entire county said Gary Garey, Otoe County agent at Syracuse.

Don Christenson of the State Department of Labor, said the rains halted wheat harvesting in western Nebraska with limited cutting underway late Sunday. Combine camps were oversupplied with machines idled by the wet weather.

Some crews were reporting that test weights of wheat were as low as 58 pounds. "I think this could be due to the rain as it is a little lower than it has been earlier in the harvest," Christenson said.

Chilean millers view wheat

A team of flour millers from Chile are in Nebraska this week to view the wheat harvest, grain storage facilities and flour mills. However, they missed the harvest.

"The trip was planned to take in the wheat harvest, but we are harvesting wheat three weeks ahead of normal. One of the team suggested we may be importing wheat from Argentina," said John Lee, chief of the wheat division of the State Department of Agriculture, at a luncheon honoring the visitors.

Chile is gradually switching from a system of a government agency buying all the wheat to one where private industry buys its wheat direct from exporters in other nations, Lee explained.

Chile is a major wheat producer in its own right, but still must buy wheat in most years, he added.

"They are currently the second largest buyer of U.S. wheat in South America with Brazil first," said Lee.

Chile has had a very good wheat crop this year, but still is expected to import more than 20 million bushels of hard red winter wheat to blend with their softer winter varieties.

Thunderstorm took violent path

By Deb Gray
Star Staff Writer

The heavens ripped apart, the rain came down, and city employees spent Monday mending the tracks of the deluge.

The thunderstorm that brought 2.97 inches of rainfall to Lincoln early Monday morning also brought destruction: several fires, electrical power outages and disrupted telephone service.

Lightning struck at least four Lincoln residences, an apartment building, a country club and a rectory causing usually minor blazes at each.

Firemen answered 18 storm-related calls between 1:20 and 2:46 a.m.

Considerable damage resulted when lightning struck the Sacred Heart Rectory, 3120 S St., shortly before 2:30 a.m. Fire was mostly confined to the ceiling of the two-story building, but smoke filled the second floor hallway and an adjoining room. No one was injured, fire officials said.

Power lines fell at 30th and Plymouth,

14th and Marion and 72nd and Ballard, causing outages of varying lengths.

According to Frank Grant of the Lincoln Electric System, the city had four major areas where power was out.

— From 56th to 74th Sts. and from A to O Sts., where power was out from 1:45 a.m. to 3:46 a.m.

— From 70th to 112th Sts. and from A St. to Pioneer Blvd. Residents in this area were without power for 38 minutes, from 1:45 a.m. to 3:46 a.m.

— From 17th to 40th Sts. and from A St. to Pioneer Blvd. No power existed from 1:45 a.m. to 3:46 a.m.

— From Bradford Drive to Rathbone Road and from Stratford Ave. to Ryons. Power was out from 1:45 a.m. to 3:46 a.m.

Grant said LES received reports of isolated outages in other parts of Lincoln. All power was restored by mid-Monday morning, he said.

Jim Vanderslice, public relations spokesman for Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph, said that about 2,100 telephones were out of service after the storm.

The area served by LT&T's main office at 15th and M Sts. suffered the most damage, Vanderslice said.

The other center of damaged service was at the 48th and South St. station.

The electricity in Monday morning's air apparently damaged a transfer switch in the generator that supplies power to Bryan Memorial Hospital.

Power went off not only during the storm, but also from about 1:30-3:30 p.m. Monday afternoon.

Bryan public relations director Jim Gember said the outage did not stop operations at the hospital because it used its auxiliary power supply.

But the rain offered a bit of good news to those city residents who like to cook over fires at their picnics. Because of the moisture, the Parks and Recreation Department lifted its fire ban in all city parks.

Turbulent weather leaves cooler temperatures behind

Cooler air spread over Nebraska Monday, trailing a cold front that produced thunderstorms, tornadoes and heavy rainfall in eastern and north central sections of the state early Monday.

Fourteen buildings were destroyed on the Joe Vinton ranch near Eli in north central Nebraska. Some trees were downed in the area, but there were no injuries.

Downpours accompanying the storms were welcomed. Davey, in northern Lancaster county, reported the most rainfall with 3.75 inches. Garland, located about 17 miles northwest of Lincoln in Seward County, received 3.30 inches while Malcolm had 3.03 and Raymond 3.00.

Lincoln recorded a whopping 2.97 inches, the greatest amount of rain received here in a 24-hour period since June 6-7, 1967.

Thousands of residents of Douglas County were awakened early Monday when 43 tornado warning sirens were turned on after a funnel cloud was sighted in Valley. The Omaha Public Power District reported seven main power outages as a result of the storm.

The Norfolk Weather Service reported winds gusting up to 70 miles per hour. At Stanton, tree limbs were downed and a haystack caught fire from lightning.

Baseball-size hail was reported five miles southwest of Fairfield in Clay County. Fairfield itself also received hail, egg-sized with jagged edges.

Lincoln's badly needed rainfall brings the yearly precipitation toll to 15.24 inches thus far this year, still 1.02 inches below normal.

Warmest spot in the state Monday was Scottsbluff with 90 degrees, the coldest 48 degrees at both Alliance and Sidney.

Nebraska farmers requested to relate wants to Congress

Democratic National Committeewoman Frances Ohmstede is urging Nebraska farmers to let Congress know they support higher loan and price supports.

Mrs. Ohmstede said that "farmers cannot survive on the prices listed in the House farm bill." She said the proposals included in the Senate version of the bill are more acceptable.

"Anything less than the prices listed in the Senate bill would send the country into a major tailspin," she asserted.

Mrs. Ohmstede, from Guide Rock, was a member of the Democratic National Platform Committee. Then candidate Jimmy Carter told the committee that the nation's farm policy should "guarantee adequate price supports and a parity level that assures farmers a reasonable return on their investments." Farmers should remind President Carter of his campaign promises, Mrs. Ohmstede said.

Nebraska YAF seeks opinions on appointments

The Nebraska Young Americans for Freedom will be polling 10,000 Nebraskans to find out opinions concerning President Jimmy Carter's new domestic appointments.

Terrell R. Cannon, state chairman, said "We are in agreement with the fears expressed by thousands of Americans about Carter's foreign policy appointments."

The poll questions the level of congressional involvement persons want in government hiring and asked those polled to specify which congressmen should take the lead in monitoring Carter appointments.

Cannon said the results of the poll will be released within the next few weeks and sent to Nebraska congressmen.

Beautiful Nebraska, peaceful prairie land,
Laced with many rivers and the hills of sand.
Dark green valleys cradled in the earth.
Rain and sunshine bring abundant birth.

Beautiful Nebraska, as you look around,
You will find a rainbow reaching to the ground.
All those wonders by the Master's hand.
Beautiful Nebraska-land.

We are so proud of this state where we live,
There is no place that has so much to give.

Nebraska captured his heart

By Lynn Zerschling
Star Staff Writer

Jim Fras is an entertainer, a storyteller, a songwriter.

Now he spends his days fixing pianos instead of playing them. The exquisite mandolin hangs on his basement wall.

And his matchless accordion is stored away, but never forgotten by the man known to many Lincolinites as "The Smiling Russian." Music has been the major theme throughout his 52 years — from his home on the shores of the Black Sea in Russia to West Germany and finally to America.

Fras is celebrating a trio of anniversaries this year, anniversaries of which few others can boast: 25 years ago he and his family arrived in the United States; 20 years ago he became a naturalized citizen; ten years ago the Legislature selected his original composition to be the state song.

"I just can't believe it," the talkative musician said, still enthralled after a decade. "It's all so wonderful."

When he and his family immigrated to the United States in 1952, they were sponsored by the Lincoln Council of Churches.

"I didn't know what this Lincoln, Neb., was. It sounded beautiful to my ear."

He's been in love with Lincoln and Nebraska ever since.

For nine years he worked on composing a song which would honor his adopted state. He has a hard time describing how the song, "Beautiful Nebraska," came to him. After nine years, he wrote it in an hour.

It all started, he said, when he asked his wife Irene, who was ironing at the time, if she'd like to go for a drive in the country. She did, so they drove around near Roca, stopped in at a tavern and had a glass of beer and later drove to a field.

"I walked out to the pasture — it was so beautiful, you know — laid down and looked up at that blue Nebraska sky. Nebraska has the biggest sky in the world," he exclaimed, his arms stretching out to embrace the universe.

It was then that he saw a cloud floating across the sky, encountered a brief rainstorm and saw a rainbow arch across the heavens. Right then, he had the song.

"I'm no lyricist," he admitted, but he rushed right home and put the words and notes down on paper.

That feat was all the more amazing because Fras, who plays nine instruments, has never had a music lesson in his life and, he claims, he can't read a note of music. Yet he arranges it, composes it and plays it. Beautifully. Effortlessly.

"People often ask me how much money I made from that song. I can't believe it. I didn't write this for money," he said with something akin to horror.

In fact, during the eight years he spent trying to get the Legislature to adopt his song, he spent a lot of his own money traveling to schools, clubs and conventions plugging his composition.

He even slept in his car when money was low. When he ran out of gasoline, he borrowed more, so he could get home to Lincoln.

"I'm completely satisfied with the way the song has been used," Fras said.

The song is sung by school children and at special events and, in his own words, "it's used as an anthem — just as I had dreamed."

He has written a number of songs and given them to the Air Force. One of his favorite pieces, "I Love Roses and You" was recorded by the U.S. Air Force Symphony Orchestra.

He credits his wife Irene, a 24-year employee of Russell Stover Candy, for inspiring him to keep up with his music through the years.

Although Mrs. Fras says she is not musical, she said, "I can tell if something he's played is good or bad."

"She's my best critic," said Fras, of 2931 S. 58th St.

Many Nebraskans will remember Fras when he played in his three-piece combo and later, when he entertained on his own, usually playing the piano, organ or, his favorite, the accordion, which is unlike any other.

The accordion's polished black and silver surface gleams in the light, and the hundreds of inlaid rhinestones twinkle as do the stars in Fras' Nebraska skyscape.

Instead of the traditional keyboard on one side, there are black and mother-of-pearl buttons. Those buttons make it possible for him to produce sounds ranging from a string orchestra to a lonely clarinet or a sexy saxophone or a galloping polka. He plays everything from classical music to jazz.

When his foot stops tapping, he puts down the accordion, apologizing for his performance.

"I never missed a key when I performed. I was in shape then," he said. "Now, I'm so rusty I don't like to play it anymore."

"Sometimes," he muses, "I don't even know where I put it."

He has found a more relaxing pursuit now. He tunes and rebuilds pianos, doing most of his work in the smaller towns and communities around the state.

It's meeting the people that he loves and sifting through two bulging scrapbooks filled with mementos, letters and newspaper clippings about his life, his family, his music.

More than money, what Jim Fras says he appreciates the most are the cards, thank-you letters and crayoned drawings from school children who have heard him play his favorite "Beautiful Nebraska."

Fras' thinks he really has found "the good life" in Nebraska.

Wronged wife's patience lauded

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 16 years and have four children. The oldest is 15 and the baby is 2. My husband (I'll call him "Joe") is a NCO in the U.S. Army. I thought our marriage was solid, but when he came home last month after serving 13 months in Korea, he seemed quiet and moody. Then he dropped the bombshell in my lap when he told me he had "fallen in love" with an 18-year-old Korean girl who is now four months pregnant with his child!

He says he loves me but can't turn his back on this girl because when she was 17, she had a baby by a Canadian soldier who deserted her.

Joe wants to divorce me, go back to Korea, marry this girl and bring her (and her child) here, so she can have her baby here. He says in time she may find another man to love and marry her, then he'll divorce her and marry me.

Joe is 38 and I am 35. I know he really loves me, but he feels guilty about what he did in Korea and takes pity on this girl. I told him I loved him too much to divorce him. (Was that wrong?)

I know if I let him go to marry her, he'll regret it later. What do you advise?

HEARTSICK IN TEXAS
DEAR HEARTSICK: I think you're wise to hold off rushing into a divorce. Although Joe doesn't deserve any good conduct medals for his behavior in Korea, it's to his credit that he's willing to accept the responsibility for his actions. An alternative plan would be to send the Korean girl money for her confinement and child support. It makes more sense than breaking up a 16-year-old, four-children marriage so that he can hastily marry an 18-year-old girl, divorce her later and remarry you again.

The word from here is to hang in there and keep your marriage intact. Good luck. Let me know what you decide to do. I care.

DEAR ABBY: SINGLE SIMON wrote to say that as a bachelor he is through accepting party invitations unless he can bring his own date. And you said that most hostesses invite bachelors to provide escorts for the single women.

The concept that most bachelors are invited to parties only to provide escorts for single women is a screaming insult to all single men!

Why must a party have an equal number of men and women? There is no need for a man or women to feel out of place at a party without a partner unless, of course, the party is an orgy.

SINGLE BY CHOICE

DEAR SINGLE: For my part, guests should be invited to parties for their personalities — and not to balance the number of males and females. (P.S. I've never attended an orgy, but I am under the impression that any number can play).

DEAR ABBY: How can a woman tell for certain whether a man's proposal of marriage is sincere?

PROPOSED TO
DEAR PROPOSED: If a woman doesn't know a man well enough to know whether he's sincere or bluffing, she doesn't know him well enough to marry him.

Real live detectives are no match for books

Louisville, Ky. (AP) — After treating two young boys to a tour of their facilities, Louisville police detectives were told they could do better, the way Encyclopedia Brown does.

David Meckle, 8, and Kevin Masterson, 9, got the special tour after asking the police department for permission to take the detective examination.

"If you will not give us the tests, we will understand," the boys wrote. Instead, they were shown "wanted" posters, the mugshot library and the lineup room, where they took their places and barely reached the 4-foot, 6-inch marking.

Finally, Carl Yates, the department's information officer, asked them: "Did you think detective work would be this hard?"

"I thought it would be harder than this," Kevin responded. "I thought it would be more like what Encyclopedia Brown does."

Encyclopedia Brown, Kevin explained, is a fictional 10-year-old boy in one of their school books who helps his father solve mysteries.

"He charges 25 cents a mystery," Kevin said. "He's real smart."

Parents noted encouraging larger student debt

New York — Have parents become too selfish to give up their pleasures on their children's behalf? That's the opinion of many college aid officers. They see an increasing number of students having to rely on student loans rather than parental funds to pay their way through college. When the young people graduate, they have tremendous debts to pay off.

A story typical of the attitudes of many parents is told by John Reeves, financial aid officer of the State University of New York's College of Environmental Science in Syracuse.

He says his department recently put together an aid package for a student, requiring no loans but asking the parents to pay $300 a year. The parent told Reeves he had a "better" offer from another school — one that asked no

000. Graduate students may owe $10,000 or more. Under a new law passed last year, graduate students in health fields may borrow up to $50,000.

Many parents encourage children to take loans because, as students, they can get the loans at 7% interest, paid by the government during the years they're in school. The parents promise that after graduation they will take over the student's payments.

Some parents fulfill this promise. But, say the loan officers, many others don't.

Once the student is working and on his own, he may be embarrassed to ask his parents to pay off the debt. The parents, though feeling a twinge of guilt, may not bring up the subject.

One aid officer told my associate, Anne Colamosca: "Many parents have come to believe that sacrifice is old-fashioned. It's every man for himself." Rudy Santo of Fordham University in New York City, where some 90% of the undergraduates have student loans, says: "Many parents are no longer willing to give up three weeks' vacation or a dinner out for their children's education."

Other aid officers aren't as hard on parents. Richard Biondi, past president of the New York State Financial Aid Association, says: "I just don't think most parents I run across are being irresponsible. They just can't meet all their expenses."

Today's penniless parent has a mixed bag of problems. If he'd bought a slightly smaller home, or made do with fewer consumer goods in order to amass more savings, his fixed expenses wouldn't be so high.

On the other hand, parents feel they want to give their young children (as well as themselves) the best standard of living they can afford.

Inflation has made it impossible for many families to get ahead of the expenses they built into their budgets many years ago. The increasing incidence of divorce also siphons off money that might otherwise have been used for college.

At age 18 or 19, middle-class youngsters have little understanding of how hard it can be to repay $5,000, especially on annual salaries of $8,000 or so that they'll likely have when they first start working. So they're willing to take big loans for fancy colleges, rather than go to a less expensive school. Students from poorer families, by contrast, are less willing to go into hock, aid officers say.

Cleansers, medications are dangers for visiting children

By Joanne Farris
DEAR JOANNE FARRIS: My grandchildren are coming to visit us next month. We haven't had little people in our house in a long time. My husband has been checking out the obvious hazards like lamp cords, bric-a-brac, getting plastic glasses for the bathrooms and patio, etc., but we wonder what else we may need to do to make our house safe for the children so they and we can share a happy visit.

ANSWER: Two important things which are often overlooked when young children visit are household cleansers and medications, which may be stored in locations handy for the users but potentially dangerous for the children.

The Red Cross lists the following precautions to help parents (and grandparents) keep children away from poisonous substances.

1. Keep all household products out of the sight and reach of children; put them in a locked cabinet, closet or drawer.
2. If you're using a household cleaning item and have to leave the room, even for a moment or two, take the cleanser with you.

Life Begins At Forty

3. Household cleansers and medicines should always be stored separately from foodstuffs. Such items should always be kept in their original containers, which are designed to keep them safe and which carry necessary identification and information about use and antidotes in case of accidental misuse.

4. Don't take medicines in front of little children; they are prone to imitate their elders. Keep pills in child-proof bottles.

5. Never discard any toxic product where it's accessible to children.

6. Forbid children to taste medicines, chemicals, plants, or berries they find. (In your case, be sure your children have taught this important rule to their children before they come to visit you.)

Quiet Fiji has not yet drifted

Bau, Fiji — In a modest frame house, on the island of Bau not far from Suva, there's the ship's table where King Cakobau signed papers that ceded the 300 Fiji islands to Queen Victoria in 1874.

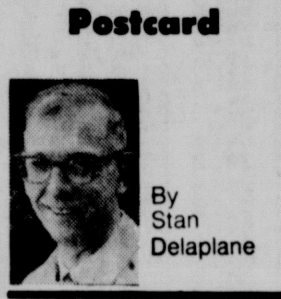

It's a battered piece of furniture. Round with carved claw legs.

Urging his chiefs to get under the protection of Great Britain, the king declared: "Any Fijian chief who refuses to cede cannot have much wisdom. If matters remain as they are, Fiji will become like a piece of driftwood on the sea and be picked up by the first passerby."

"The whites who have come to Fiji are a bad lot. They are mere stalkers on the beach. Of one thing I am assured, that if we do not cede Fiji, the white stalkers on the beach, the cormorants, will open their maws and swallow us."

The island of Bau was the royal home of the kings of Fiji. It is a small, green island, maybe four football fields in length. There is a high lookout hill in the center. Tall coconut palms grow along the shore. On the clipped, green lawn of the flatland, there is an old, whitewashed stone church of missionary days.

At the opposite end are the upright poles of the meeting house — a great hurricane blew the roof away a few years ago. A wooden rudder leans against the stone steps, all that is left of King Cakobau's yacht. On the other side of the steps is the rusting anchor of the French brig "L'Aimable Josephine." She was overrun in 1832, and her crew was popped into the cannibal ovens.

Seven years ago on a damp afternoon in Fiji, I watched the ceremony as the young Prince of Wales gave the Fijis back to the grandsons of the chiefs who gave them to Queen Victoria. Suva is still the capital of government. There are new hotels and talk of industries. But much of Fiji — like the quiet island of Bau — remain as they were 100 years ago.

We went over to Bau on a warm and sunny afternoon with a sweating Fijian boy poling the punt. The island is a half mile offshore from the big island of Viti Levu. When the tide is out, islanders can wade the channel and, at a distance, seem to be walking magically on the water.

There are no roads on Bau. No cars. No bicycles. There is one telephone. Some 300 people live in thatch and grass houses and fish the reef with the same ceremonies and tabus established long ago.

The government man who got us permission to visit Bau told me: "There used to be many tabus on the island. Many people were afraid to approach it. Break a tabu and you might find yourself staying for dinner — as the main course. "Sails had to be set a certain way for respect. There had to be a man in the bow. Even if he was alone, he had to run up to the bow. And it's hard to pole along from that position. "Today when the women fish, there is a chief woman who tells them every detail. Who pulls on this line. And who stands exactly where."

People who broke the tabus were strung up by the heels and swung against a stone until their heads cracked. The stone is in the church and now used as a baptismal font.

"It used to be over at the meeting house — that was a heathen temple," said the government man. King Cakobau is buried on the hill with his Christian name, "Epinisa." Ebenezer. (c) Chronicle Publishing Co.

Honest truth: Nickel coffee

Barnum, Minn. (UPI) — A faded sign on the outside of Duesler's Coffee Shop in this small town 40 miles south of Duluth says: "Coffee 5 Cents."

Most visitors think the sign is long out-of-date or a come-on handed down from circus man P. T. Barnum, for whom the town was named.

But Eleanor and Lester Duesler still charge a nickel for a cup of coffee with a piece of pie, just as they did when they bought the shop 16 years ago.

Coffee alone costs more. It's a dime.

Bridge

Let's say you're in six clubs doubled and West leads the nine of spades. You win with the ace and play a low trump to dummy. When West follows suit with the ten you play dummy's king, whereupon East shows out, discarding a spade.

This is a disappointing development, and it now seems that you must go down at least one. But if you study the situation closely, a faint glimmer of hope begins to emerge. You can still make the slam if West has exactly 3-3-4 distribution, as well as the king of diamonds.

In line with this, you ruff a spade, finesse the queen of diamonds, ruff dummy's last spade, play a diamond to the ace, and ruff a diamond. As a result of these maneuvers, this is now the position:

You lead the A-K-Q of hearts. When West follows suit to all of them, you know you've got him over a barrel.

You continue with the five of hearts and West finds that one of his two seemingly certain tricks goes down the drain. The best he can do is ruff with the jack of trumps as you discard the ten of diamonds from dummy. But on his next play he is compelled to lead a club away from the Q-8 and allow you to score the last two tricks with the ace and nine of trumps. Never give up!

Autry shoots Sherry out of the saddle

Anaheim (UPI) — The California Angels, staggering after five straight losses and three games under .500, fired Norm Sherry as their manager Monday and hired third base coach Dave Garcia to replace him.

Sherry, 45, was dismissed after the Angels returned from a five-game road trip with a disappointing 39-42 record and 9½ games behind the Chicago White Sox in the American League West.

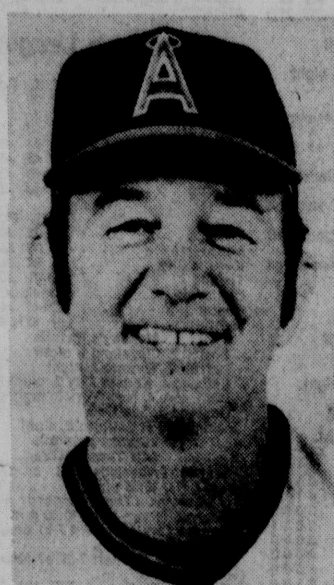

The Angels, the preseason favorites in the AL West after owner Gene Autry went out and spent $5.2 million to bring in free agents Don Baylor, Bobby Grich and Joe Rudi, lost 4-2 at Texas Sunday night.

Sherry was fired almost one season after he replaced the fired Dick Williams and became the Angels' sixth manager. Garcia, 56, was given a contract through 1978.

At the same time, the Angels fired Pitching Coach Billy Muffett and hired Frank Robinson, baseball's first black manager who was fired at Cleveland this season, to fill Garcia's vacated third base coaching spot.

Robinson also will serve as the Angels' batting coach.

"We feel the team is definitely a contending club," said Angel General Manager Harry Dalton, "and has the capability to move into

Norm Sherry

... fired the middle of the pennant race in the second half of the season. "And we felt that these changes would help us accomplish this."

Garcia served as a coach under Robinson in Cleveland in 1975-76 after managing in the Angels' farm system at El Paso in 1974 where the club won a Texas League divisional pennant.

"Harry Dalton called me this morning and offered me the job," said Garcia. "Of the 26 major league positions, this is the one I most wanted to have."

Playing Coach Andy Etchebarren will assume the responsibilities of pitching coach for "the next few days," the Angel announcement said.

Sherry was hired July 23, 1976, after Williams was dismissed following a player revolt led by Bill Melton. He guided the Angels to a 37-29 record to conclude the season.

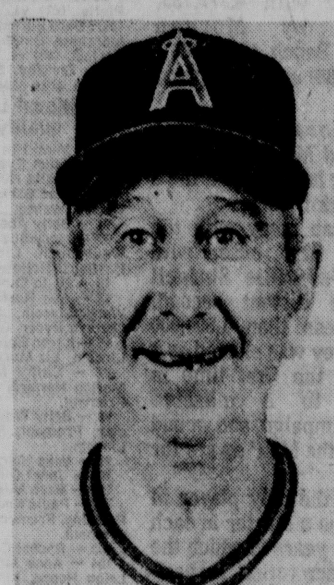

Sherry said at Arlington, Tex., Sunday that he was "damn disappointed" with his club's first-half results.

In an effort to get the Angels going in the right direction last month, he named second baseman Jerry Remy as the second team captain in the Angels' 17-year history. Robinson was the first.

But the Angels lost five in a row — their longest losing skid of the season — at Minnesota and Texas.

Grich and Rudi are both on the disabled list with Grich expected to miss the remainder of the season because of back surgery. Rudi is expected back after the All-Star game.

The Angels are hitting .261 as a team and have a team ERA of .342. Left-hander Frank Tanana has a

Dave Garcia

... hired 12-6 record and fast-balling Nolan Ryan is 11-8.

Sherry, a third base coach and former catcher with the Los Angeles Dodgers and New York Mets, was the sixth Angel manager in the club's 17 seasons.

Last October he was given a one-year contract for the 1977 season, and he told reporters he would practice a low-pressure coaching philosophy.

"I think you've got to have a ball club that enjoys playing and enjoys coming to the park," he explained.

"I believe each player has to be relaxed and have confidence in himself. I try to make players believe in themselves."

Sherry joined the Angels' organization in 1969, managing Idaho Falls of the Pioneer League and serving the next two years as a coach under Angels' Manager Lefty Phillips.

He managed minor league clubs in Shreveport, La., and El Paso, Tex., in 1972 and 1973 and spent the next two seasons as manager of the Salt Lake City Gulls, the Angels' entrant in the Pacific Coast League.

He played for the Dodgers in 1959-62. His best season was 1960 when he batted .283 and hit eight home runs. He played one more year with the Mets before being released.

Sherry, born July 16, 1931, in New York City, now lives in the Orange County suburb of Mission Viejo. He and his wife, Mardie, have three children, Cindy, Pam and Mike.

His brother Larry, a Dodgers' relief pitching hero in the 1959 World Series, is now the pitching coach with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Stallworth leaves gridiron

It seems appropriate Byron Stallworth made a decision to attend radiology school this summer for a two-year course towards becoming a radiologist (x-ray technician.)

Now, instead of slipping through defenses, exposing weaknesses like an x-ray, he'll be taking them.

Stallworth set the state college coaches running for game films and new defenses last season when he rushed for 1,228 yards, averaging 136 yards rushing per game.

"He's one of the most exciting running backs I've ever seen and probably the best running back I've seen this side of the Mississippi," said Doane coach Joe Glenn.

Stallworth was named the Sunday Journal and Star Offensive Player of the year for his efforts, which helped Nebraska Wesleyan to its first Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic football crown ever.

"Losing Byron is like losing 50 per cent of your offense," said NWU coach Harold Chaffee. "He did so many things you can't coach. He was a great leader for the whole team because of his great attitude."

But Stallworth, who tallied seven touchdowns in the first four games last season and ran for 265 yards against the best rushing defense in the state, ended his collegiate football career after his junior year.

"A lot of people told me I was nuts for giving up a chance at having another good year and possibly getting a pro offer," said Stallworth, a Lakewood, N.J., native.

"But I felt it was time to get something concrete going in my life and a degree plus certification in radiology is what I want," he said. "I had fun playing, but there's not a lot of security in playing small college football. You can't do it forever."

"If I waited and played another season, everything would be set back and the radiology study would be setting me back two years," said Stallworth, who is now taking courses at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

"I met a lot of people and made a lot of friends playing football and that's the best part of my career on the field," he said. "I know I'll never forget the people."

Stallworth also earned conference baseball honors two years straight and this year hit .300 and committed just two errors as a centerfielder.

Midwest Speedway will offer a special sportsman-only program next Sunday and resume regular super stock racing the following Sunday. Midwest owner and operator Pete Leikam also said that a special sprint car/super stock show is scheduled July 31, with special ticket rates to make up for the show in June that was partially cancelled due to rains.

Kearney State will host the National AAU wrestling camp July 18-22 for wrestlers 11 years old and up. Wrestlers from 13 states participated in the camp last year.

This year's camp will be coached by Tadakkhi Hatta and Osamu Watunabe, among others.

Watunabe was never beaten and never scored upon in 178 international matches, which included several world championships.

Other clinicians include Zygmunt Omowski, the Polish National coordinator for Greco-Roman wrestling and Jon Baciu, coach of the world champion Romanian Greco-Roman wrestling team.

Lincoln youths take top spots

Grand Island, Neb. (AP) — Clay W. Anderson, son of Gordon Anderson of Lincoln, shot 150 to earn first place Monday in the 36-hole par 144 Nebraska "Big I" Insurance Youth Golf Classic at Riverside Golf Club in Grand Island.

He and the other four low scorers were chosen from a field of 72 young men aged 14 to 17 to represent Nebraska in the Independent Insurance Agents of America Youth Golf Classic Championship at Napa, Calif., in August.

Mark Maness, son of Dr. and Mrs. E.S. Maness of Lincoln, shot 151 and took second place after winning a play-off with Kevin L. Chestnut, son of Mrs. and Mrs. Gerald Chestnut of Omaha, who also shot 151.

In fourth place was Greg Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Wilson Jr. of Omaha with 153. David Clouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Clouse of Friend, Neb., earned the fifth spot with 156.

Pele consoled

Pele, the legendary superstar of soccer, gets a consoling hug and pat on the cheek from Mel Machin, Seattle leftback, after the New York Cosmos lost 1-0. Pele is retiring from soccer after this season.

Sasse shares Public Links lead

Milwaukee (UPI) — The 6,608 yard Brown Deer Public Golf Course lived up to its reputation for toughness Monday in the first round of the United States Public Links Championship.

A field of 159 amateurs from around the nation failed to crack par on the Milwaukee County course which is hosting the tournament for the third time in its 52 year history.

Six players were tied for the lead with even par 71, while five players were one shot back. The leaders are: Rennie Sasse, Lincoln, Neb., Thomas Proben, Redford, Mich., Richard Alan Graen, Rochester, Minn., Kim Hubbard, Spokane, Wash., John Mancini, Sterling Heights, Mich., and Peter Jacobi, Dayton, Ohio.

The course proved to be tough for the public links golfers and even the leaders had their share of bogeys along with their birdies.

A second 18 holes of qualifying will be played Tuesday and the top 64 players will advance to four days of match play competition starting Wednesday.

Sasse, a restaurant manager who only plays a few rounds of golf a week, shot a 2 under par 33 on the front nine that included an eagle on the par 5 fourth hole. But he followed it with a two over par 38 on the backside. His holes included bogeys on No. 1 and No. 10.

"I always start good," he said with a laugh.

Sasse, 22, works 60 or more hours a week and only gets to play a few times, a plight shared by most of the public links players.

The youngest player in the tournament is Mitchell Murata, 14, of Kaneohe, Hawaii, who shot a 77.

"I started playing when I was six years old," he said. "My father is a trick shot artist and club pro and he's been teaching me."

The top 64 will qualify for the match play competition which begins with 18 holes on Wednesday.

There are double rounds on Thursday and Friday and a 36-hole windup for the last two players on Saturday. Each qualifying section for the tournament has a three-man team represented in the tournament and the low team score after the qualifying rounds will win the 51st team championship.

Bell said he hopes "Lincoln will support the events with big crowds like it did in 1974. Crowds are important to an athlete's performance. A first class full house will usually mean better performances."

Tickets are available at all Sears stores in Nebraska and at NBC and First National Banks in Lincoln.

Tickets also can be secured by writing the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce at 1221 N St. (68508 zip code).

Bell announced Monday that in addition to NBC's three-hour live television coverage Aug. 13 and 14, Universal Studios is preparing a 28-minute film on the Junior Olympics for national distribution.

Watson, Richard boost Astros

Houston (UPI) — Bob Watson hit a two-run double in the sixth inning and Houston Astro right-hander J. R. Richard fired a five-hitter to earn his first shutout of the season Monday night with a 2-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Richard, who has an 8-6 record, struck out five batters and walked two. But he needed brilliant defensive plays by center-fielder Cesar Cedeno and first baseman Bob Watson to get out of tough situations in the early innings.

Fred Norman retired the first 14 batters but Jose Cruz' single with two out in the fifth ended the no-hit bid and in the sixth inning singles by Richard and Julio Gonzalez preceded Watson's double.

Richard has allowed only 10 earned runs in his last 58 innings. He allowed the Los Angeles Dodgers one run in 10 innings in his last appearance but didn't get the decision.

In other games Monday:

Rookie right-hander Bob Stanley, making his second start since June 3, pitched a five-hitter when the Boston Red Sox won their seventh victory in their last eight games with a 2-1 triumph over the Cleveland Indians.

Stanley, who made his major league debut against the Indians on April 16, struck out four, walked three and lost his shutout bid in the fifth when Andre Thornton hit his 11th homer over the 400-mark in center field. It was his sixth win of the year.

Rusty Staub homered and doubled to drive in four runs and scored the deciding run on a two-out seventh inning single by Steve Kemp to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 9-7 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

An outfield error by Bill Robinson allowed Chris Speier to score the go-ahead run during a three-run fifth inning rally which brought the Montreal Expos a 4-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates behind the route-going pitching of Stan Bahnsen.

Right-hander Francisco Barrios struck out 10 batters en route to his sixth straight victory and Jorge Orta doubled home a pair of runs to pace the Chicago White Sox to their 10th victory in 11 games, a 4-2 decision over the Kansas City Royals.

Barrios, 9-3, yielded six hits in hurling his fifth complete game. He got all the support he needed in the first inning when the White Sox scored three runs off losing pitcher Larry Gura. Orta's double scored Ralph Garr and Alan Bannister, who had both singled, to make it 2-0. Orta then moved to third on an infield out and came in on Chet Lemon's sacrifice fly.

Merwald picks right spots for good scores

By Virgil Parker
Sports Editor

Omaha — Sarah Merwald has only broken 80 on a golf course twice in her life. But, the Omaha teenager certainly picks the appropriate time to shoot her best.

The first 79 in the life of the Omaha Marian High School junior-to-be came last month during the first round of the state women's medal play tournament in Columbus.

She duplicated that effort here Monday during the qualifying round at the 55th annual Nebraska State Women's Golf Championships to earn medalist honors.

Young Merwald bested two other teenagers — defending champion Nan Circo of Omaha and North Platte's Val Skinner — by two strokes over the demanding Happy Hollow Country Club course to claim the No. 1 seed in the championship flight.

"I sure hope I don't follow with the same kind of round I had in Columbus," Merwald said. "After my 79 there I played really bad and was in the 90s."

The field of 128 was divided into eight flights of 16 each by the qualifying scores for match play which begins with the first round Tuesday.

Medalist Merwald's first opponent will be Jane Deeter, one of three Lincolinites to qualify for the championship flight.

The trio is the same three who finished 1-2-3 in the recent Capital City championships — Jean Hyland, who won her 15th city title and is a five-time state champ; four-time state winner Dorothy Schwartzkopf, the runnerup in Lincoln; and Deeter, who finished third in the city meet.

Schwartzkopf edged the other two by a single stroke during Monday's qualifying, posting an 84.

Everybody in the field agreed on one thing Monday — Happy Hollow's huge, slick greens contributed to a lot of putting woes.

"I four-putted the very first hole,"

Schwartzkopf recalled. "I knew I'd have to start doing better than that if I was going to make the championship flight. But my mind kept wandering. I didn't really start to concentrate until the back side." Schwartzkopf recovered to a sparkling 39 after suffering through a 45 on the first nine holes.

"The greens are so large — and they're hard to read," Hyland added. "I had four three-putt greens on the back nine. I'm sure they cut them shorter than any other club in the state. They are fast — really slick."

The greens didn't bother Deeter at the outset. She used just 13 putts on the front side while scoring 39.

"But the back was different," she admitted. "I only had one three-putt green, but I was leaving my approach iron shots short."

Three players tied for the final spot in the championship flight with 87s. Veteran campaigner Joan Martig won a playoff on the first hole with a par after Mimi Huston of Grand Island got in some trees with a hooked drive and medalist Merwald's older sister Lynne three-putted.

Nebraska golfer Susan Slattery of Omaha missed the playoff for the final spot in the championship flight after some unthinking action on the 18th green.

Slattery watched her second putt — a three-footer for an 86 — skid by the hole about four inches. In disgust, she reached across with her putter to stab the ball back into the hole — for an 87 — which would have gained the playoff. But that little tap skipped out of the hole and she recorded four putts and an 88.

Four past champions were in the qualifying field. In addition to Circo, Hyland and Schwartzkopf, who all made the championship flight, 1966 winner Betty Marchese is entered, but she settled for a 92. Her daughter Susan qualified for the championship flight, however.

Men's city golf tourney will start

A field of 149 of the city's best golfers are scheduled to contest the Lincoln men's city golf tournament beginning Tuesday at Pioneer's Park Golf Course.

The 72-hole event will move from Pioneer's to Holmes Park on Wednesday where the open field will be trimmed to the low 80 players and ties.

Of the 149 entered, 127 are in the open division with 22 in the senior division.

Defending champion Mike Hughtett will not defend his title since he is involved in the Western Junior Amateur at Purdue University this week.

Racers lose: Demise near

Indianapolis (UPI) — A "mystery man" who had several million dollars he was thinking about investing in the Indianapolis Racers so the WHA team could join the National Hockey League decided against it, officials announced Monday.

Barring "lighting striking twice," the team will not be able to attempt to join the NHL and will probably die, David Given, general counsel for Indiana National Bank, told a news conference.

chronized swimming.

Hammer referred to Pat Mulligan, finance committee chairman who is seeking to raise $14,000 more in his $22,000 community budget goal launched three weeks ago.

Although Sears is financing the massive event, Lincoln businesses are being asked to donate money for some facility rental, equipment purchases and officials' fees.

Hammer stressed the bulk of the Junior Olympics administration is volunteer. "We will have anywhere between 40 to 60 volunteer officials for each of the seven sports," he said, adding that those wishing to donate time can contact him or the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce office.

things to offer — enthusiasm and a willingness to work," Bell said. "That's a tribute to the community."

It's also a tribute to Lincoln physician Richard Hammer, the National Junior Olympic general chairman, who has developed a reputation for solid organization of AAU-sponsored events.

The typically low key Hammer, however, wasn't prepared to accept the bouquet and relax the rest of the summer.

Even though organization is functioning smoothly, he indicated there is still work to be done before more than 1,000 athletes from all 50 states invade Lincoln to compete in seven sports — track and field, gymnastics, diving, wrestling, trampoline and tumbling, judo and syn-

Lincoln's lure as a national sports host probably can be boiled down to one word — organization.

Mason Bell, director of sports development for the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU), said Monday "Lincoln's planning for the National Junior Olympics is so far ahead that we could probably run these multisport championships tomorrow if we had to."

Bell, in Lincoln for a press conference to promote the nationally televised event Aug. 12-14 on the NU campus, said Lincoln has more than a central location and excellent facilities to land the Junior Olympic championships.

"Lincoln has two other very important

Ex-Rangers villain now Mets' golden boy

New York (UPI) — Lenny Randle has turned the whole thing around for himself, and the most remarkable thing about that is he did it all in less than 90 days.

Right now, he's the Mets' most popular player. Also the most exciting.

Almost from the first day he reported to them as a "marked man" last April 29, Randle has performed so outstandingly both offensively and defensively and shown such a genuinely warm, friendly disposition that hardly anyone associates him anymore with the same individual who punched out former Texas manager Frank Lucchesi and put him in the hospital this spring.

When Randle first came to the Mets from the Rangers, Willie Mays felt the one thing he needed more than anything else was a friend. Nobody asked Mays to volunteer, but he did. He took Randle around to different places, helped him in his new surroundings and gave him a piece of advice.

"Number one, keep your mouth shut," he told Randle. "Go out and bust your butt. They'll give you a chance here, and as long as you go out there on the field and play well, don't worry about the fans or the writers. They'll be fair with you. Forget about what happened with the Rangers. You're not the only one who ever blew up. I did, too, once. With Clyde King when I was with the Giants and he was the manager. But I pulled myself together. King said I wasn't gonna play in a series with Houston and then put my name back in the lineup. I wanted to know why. He said some things to me in the dugout and I said some things back to him. Chub Feeney told me to go and apologize. I felt I wasn't wrong but I apologized. Look, Lenny, in this game, in this life, you have to bend because if you don't, they're gonna bend you."

Pasted on the back wall of his locker at Shea Stadium are four of the many letters Randle has received. Virtually all are supportive in their tone, letting him know how much pleasure he is bringing the letter writers by the way he's playing for the Mets.

"People give me strength and encouragement," he says.

Randle always will be remembered for the Lucchesi episode. That much he realizes. By nature, he is a mild person, not at all belligerent. The last previous fight he remembers being involved in was in elementary school in Compton, Calif.

"I was in the third grade and a bunch of us were playing softball," he recalls, smiling. "This fellow was in the sixth grade and he tried to take the field from us. I said to him, 'Hey, that's not right what you're doing. You wouldn't want us to do it to you.' He grabbed me by the shirt and said, 'Who do you think you are?' When he grabbed me, I picked him up and we scuffled awhile. It was all over with pretty quick."

Randle leads all the Mets with his .309 batting average and some of the defensive plays he has made been making around third base border on pure disbelief. Like the diving half-gainer he made on Chris Speier's sacrifice bunt attempt in foul territory during Saturday night's contest with Montreal.

"I've seen some great catches in my time, but I never saw one like that," offers Mets' manager Joe Torre.

Randle made the catch in the 12th inning. He then came up in the 17th and delivered a two-run homer to snap the Mets' nine-game losing string.

One of the reasons so many Mets' fans relate to Randle is because of the way he relates to them. During a rain delay of nearly two hours at Shea Stadium the other night, most of the Mets' players went into the clubhouse for a smoke, a soft drink or merely to listen to music on the radio.

With the rain pouring down, Randle sat in the stands and talked with some of the fans. Some asked him for his autograph and he signed patiently — in the rain and all. A lady, seeing he was getting wet, offered to protect him with her umbrella.

One youngster, around eight or nine, boasted his friend alongside him was an all-star high school player in Brooklyn. "Why don't you give me your autograph?" Randle asked the boy who was so proud of his friend.

"Are you serious?" the kid said, his eyes nearly bulging out. "You mean you want my signature?"

"Why not," said Randle. "You're a star, too."

The boy signed his name on the inside bill of Randle's cap. Randle does that a lot. He also has signatures on his glove put there by fans.

"I don't like them to feel we're simply symbols and objects," says the Mets' switch hitting third baseman. "People kind of put ballplayers on a pedestal and don't look at us as human beings. I just don't think that's right."

Astrological Forecast by Sidney Omarr

Tuesday, July 12, 1977

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Diplomacy is necessary in any area of current achievement. Taurus person helps you to prove to point. Accent on mystery, the occult, money from others, partner or mate — your ability to understand situation shrouded in element of misdirection. Family, home, "perky" associate fill out scenario.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be aware of legal angles, implications. Perceive motives, potential. Get proper and true appraisal. Pisces, Virgo and Gemini figure prominently. Stick to number "7" in matters of speculation. Psychic or intuitive impression is apt to prove correct.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Practical matters should dominate. Get files in order. Align priorities. Older individual wants to share experiences. Be receptive. Don't permit pride to deter progress. You have right to certain information, in voices, if frank — and if you stick to business — you do better than anticipated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What appears to be of passing interest could have long-range implications. Applies to business — and personal relationships. Aries, Libra figure prominently. You get news which indicates past views have been vindicated.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on self-image, willingness to take cold plunge into past. Relative who sings blues is a "psychic vampire." You need not feel responsible for another's debts. Security is available, but you must first make "grand gesture."

IF JULY 12th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are sensitive, fond of food and travel, have marvelous sense of humor and tend to scatter your forces. You are artistic; tuned to "vibrations," have digestive problems and draw to you persons born under Gemini and Sagittarius. Most blues is a "psychic vampire." You need not feel responsible for another's debts. Security is available, but you must first make "grand gesture."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You make contact with person who pulls strings, has much to say about policy. Have pertinent material available. Dig for creative way of presenting factual information. Gemini, Aquarius and Leo are part of TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Finish rather than begin — take inventory. Be aware of what you own — or owe. Money is spotlighted — you get individual check payment for work done in past. Individual you aided is now ready to return the favor.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Friendship could become something more — emphasis on expansion, communication, getting message to more persons. Gemini, Libra and Aquarius figure prominently. In matters of speculation, stick to number "3." You receive accolade from one who means much to you. Savor feeling!

CANCER (July 21-Aug. 22): You gain spiritual insights. What seemed out of reach becomes an actuality. You rise above petty envy, differences, tangle of red tape. You advance by teaching, sharing knowledge. Another Cancer figures prominently — so does the number "11."

Protesters must go

Kent, Ohio (UPI) — A common pleas court judge issued an injunction Monday ordering protesters fighting construction of a gymnasium at Kent State University to leave the campus by 8 a.m. Tuesday — but also told the school to hold up plans for the gym.

The demonstrators, who were objecting to construction of the gym near the site where four Kent State students were shot to death by Ohio National Guardsmen during an anti-war demonstration May 4, 1970, said they were thinking it over.

Judge Joseph Kainrad ordered the university to halt plans to build the $6 million gymnasium until a preliminary hearing July 21 for the protesters to present their case.

'Citizen mail' same

Washington (UPI) — The Postal Service board of governors Monday endorsed plans to keep the cost of mailing a personal letter at 13 cents while increasing rates for a wide array of other services.

The proposals including the "citizen mail" concept now go to the Postal Rate Commission, an independent agency which will have 10 months to hold hearings and refer the recommendations back to the board of governors along with any proposed changes.

Air fare raise OK'd

Washington (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board, reversing an earlier decision, said Monday it will let the nation's major airlines raise fares by seven-tenths of 1% starting Friday.

The board said statistical miscalculations led to an earlier rejection of the proposed increase.

Arrest in rest room

Alton, Ill. (AP) — Police Officer Al Womack donned his jogging suit and zoomed around the park. As he neared the rest rooms, he put on a burst of speed, bolted through a doorway and surprised four men gambling.

"We have been having a hard time moving in on that activity in that park," said Police Chief Rudy Sowders.

Other officers closed in while Sowders literally stood on the two pair of dice and $2.30 in change.

Four men were arrested on gambling charges and a fifth person was taken into custody on drug and firearms charges.

Failsafe refined

Washington (UPI) — The Air Force reported Monday it has made a further refinement in the failsafe process designed to make it impossible for a Minuteman intercontinental missile to be fired without an order from the White House.

The change will make it impossible for a two-man crew in a missile silo to begin the arming process that readies a missile to be fired unless an encoded signal is sent from higher headquarters to electronic equipment at the underground Minuteman site, spokesmen said.

Peseta devaluates

Madrid, Spain (UPI) — The Spanish government announced Monday a devaluation of the peseta, but officials would not say immediately how much the value of the currency was to drop or when it would take effect.

Earlier Monday, banks stopped changing foreign currency and financial sources and Spanish newspapers predicted a devaluation ranging from 20 to 30%.

Judd Bietz, son of zoo director, joins in cleanup as waters swirl from burst pipe.

Children's Zoo is awash after water main burst

By Nancy Waller
Star Staff Writer

Cleanup preparations for a party to be held Tuesday night at Lincoln Children's Zoo were literally washed away Monday.

A 20-inch water main near 28th and A Sts. burst shortly before 5:45 p.m., sending a 2-foot wave of water into the zoo's botanical gardens, according to Alan Bietz, zoo director.

The water quickly flooded the area, causing the most damage to the country store, the theater and the children's train, Bietz said.

"Quick thinking on the part of our young employees averted more extensive damage and loss of zoo animal life," he said. However, a mouse in the country store drowned.

Bietz said he could not estimate the extent of the damage.

"Our greatest loss will be the loss of revenue from the non-operation of the children's train," Bietz said, noting that it will take several days to uncover the tracks.

The children's train, which circles the zoo, and Rock Island Railroad tracks were in the path of the water, and both tracks were washed over with mud.

Bietz said the general layout of the botanical gardens prevented more extensive flooding.

"The gardens allow for high and low areas and channels which helped to avert a real flooding of the area," he said.

Approximately 45 minutes passed, however, before city water crews arrived to cut off the water from the 20-inch, high pressure main. Pete Haase, assistant superintendent of construction, said crews had to be "rounded up" before they could answer the call.

Crews are on call only on Sundays, he said. "We just have to take our chances that this sort of thing won't happen," he said.

Haase said the area around the water main will have to be excavated to determine the cause of the breakage.

"The water pressure was almost nil" at 29th and A St., according to Louis Brauer, A. St. plant operator. "That is the largest pressure pipe in town."

Brauer said the pipe fed a network of pipes which serviced an area approximately from Sheridan to College View and from 27th to Van Dorn. "Those areas were without pressure for about 45 minutes," he estimated.

The zoo will open Tuesday, Bietz said, and the play "Rover Flies Over" will be performed as scheduled at 10:30 a.m. in Zooville Square.

The party which was to be held Tuesday night for members of the Arnett R. Folsom Zoological Society will be postponed, he said.

Power plant model to save money, find errors

By Gordon Winters
Star Staff Writer

A $332,000 construction project has been taking shape in Kansas City since last summer — on table tops.

It's a scale (half-inch to one foot) model of the Laramie River Station being built in Wyoming to meet the electricity demands of people in eight states, including Nebraska.

This model has a serious purpose, according to engineers and architects with Burns and McDonnell, the firm designing the power plant. It's intended to save money.

One use of the model is to detect design mistakes before it is too late and things have to be changed at the construction site. Any change that results in a one-day delay would cost $125,000, according to the engineers.

All the structural steel of the plant is made of clear plastic in the model so interiors are visible. Pipes in the power plant are color coded.

Forty tables are used in construction of the model and they can be pulled apart for access to interior portions of the plant. When complete the model will be 12 feet wide and 55 feet long.

The model already has been useful, according to John Riley of Burns and McDonnell. He said that when maintenance engineers saw the model they noticed there was no way to lift out huge pump and fan motors.

"We found out forklifts wouldn't pick them up so we put in a monorail system," Riley said. It's hard to put a dollar value on what that change saved, he said, but there is no question it was valuable.

Similar models have been used since the 1940's, according to Maynard Miracle of

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles by a Star staff writer who has visited the Wyoming site of a plant that will provide part of Lincoln's electric power beginning in 1980.

Conner/Omni Design Co., the subcontractor doing the model building for Burns and McDonnell.

"They're used quite frequently in the aerospace industry," Miracle said. The technique also is often used in building oil refineries and has even been used in building a Pringles Potato Chip factory.

Having the model at hand made it easier for the engineers to explain the operation of the plant. Riley explained that coal first goes into pulverizers, where it is ground into dust as fine as talcum powder.

The dust is picked up "like a windstorm" and blown into the huge 240-foot-tall boiler, where it ignites so quickly it looks like an oil fire, according to Riley.

Temperatures reach as high as 3200 degrees in the bottom of the boiler. The coal fire heats water in pipes on the outside of the boiler into steam which is piped to the turbine, where, propelled by its expansion, it turns large wheels with tilted blades.

The turbine turns a large electromagnet that moves the electrons from atom to atom in the hollow, water-filled copper bars on the outside of the generator. The electrons flow out the copper bars, through transformers and into power lines.

The cost of the model being used for this plant is not even close to a record, according to Miracle. A model being built for a nuclear power plant in Michigan will cost $2.3 million.

2 Russian hijackers give up in Helsinki

Helsinki, Finland (UPI) — Two Russian-speaking hijackers surrendered Tuesday more than 30 hours after they commandeered a Soviet Aeroflot jetliner on a domestic flight and forced it to land in Helsinki.

A government spokesman said one of the air pirates left the plane and gave up at about 5:30 a.m. (10:30 p.m. CDT Monday) and the second surrendered shortly before 7 a.m.

The first hijacker to give up did so shortly after their three remaining hostages escaped while the air pirates dozed off, government officials said.

Neither hijacker was immediately identified.

A government announcement said the three hostages escaped shortly before 3 a.m. (8 p.m. CDT). A spokesman later told reporters they had escaped and were safe but gave no further details.

The hostages were said to be safe after being held for about 30 hours. Government troops ringed the aircraft but made no immediate move to seize the plane.

Five Finnish government ministers who have been observing developments were still at the airport and the authorities hoped for a peaceful end to the hijacking, the spokesman said.

The hijackers, armed with hand grenades and explosives, broke off negotiations with Finnish authorities Monday night after releasing all but three of their original 70 hostages.

A Finnish government spokesman said the hijackers stopped talking and slammed shut the door to the jet which they hijacked to Helsinki Sunday night.

A light plane which had been brought near the plane was moved to another part of the airport.

Earlier, it appeared there had been a major break in the negotiations when the two Russian-speaking hijackers released all but three of their original 70 hostages.

The hijackers, who had threatened to destroy the jet unless they got safe passage to another country, faced police and an army brigade with anti-aircraft guns surrounding their captured craft.

The hijackers released 18 passengers at 9:50 p.m., leaving only three Russian men aboard as hostages. Earlier they freed 41 other passengers, sending out all women and children in the first groups. Another six Russians escaped the gunmen and ran off the plane in midafternoon.

The captured jet, low on fuel and without any crew members aboard, was ringed by troops in a secluded corner of the airport.

Finnish officials stood at the aircraft's gangway and kept in contact with the hijackers by shouting up to the fuselage door. They made no move to refuel the plane and said they had no crew qualified to fly the twin-engine, medium-range jet.

The hijackers had threatened to detonate the plane at 4 p.m., but the deadline passed without any move in the drama until the hostages were freed nearly six hours later.

The hijackers, two young Russian-speaking men who originally demanded a flight to Stockholm, Sweden, said later they wanted passage to any other country except the Soviet Union or Finland.

The Soviet Union and Finland had a mutual agreement which provides for the return of hijackers. This was Finland's first hijacking case.

Events in inmate death point to electrocution

By J. L. Schmidt
Star Staff Writer

Shawn Sparks, 16, had placed his mattress on the floor of his cell at the Nebraska Penal Complex last Thursday night, hoping for a cool night's sleep.

He also wanted to be near his fan, according to the Director of Correctional Services, Joe Vitek, who told newsmen Monday about recent problems at the penitentiary. For the past three years, inmates have been allowed to have the fans as part of their personal property in their cells, he added.

Sometime shortly after 11 p.m., Sparks' two cellmates heard him sit up and holler "Orange," then fall over onto the floor near the cell door. One of the cellmates yelled for a guard who responded at 11:18 p.m. and called for medical help.

By 12:28 a.m., Sparks was dead, Vitek said. Chronologically, this is what happened.

11:20 p.m. — a supervisor and a male nurse responded to the guard's call for help.

11:21 p.m. — The nurse applied CPR and other medical treatment to Sparks.

11:25 p.m. — the prison physician was called.

11:33 p.m. — he arrived at Sparks' cell and began mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration. Sparks responded to treatment.

11:36 p.m. — a call was placed to 911, the emergency medical number of Lincoln.

11:47 p.m. — the 911 squad arrived (units from the Lincoln Fire Department and the Bryan Mobile Heart team).

11:55 p.m. — an ambulance took Sparks to Lincoln General Hospital.

12:00 midnight — ambulance arrived at Lincoln General.

12:28 a.m. — Sparks was pronounced dead by an attending physician.

Vitek was notified at about 1 a.m. and went to the penitentiary where he and warden Robert Parratt began their investigation.

"We initially thought it was a drug overdose, but we noticed the fan, partially dismantled (it was lacking a cover on the blades and one on the back)," Vitek said.

Although the final autopsy report has not been released, Vitek said chemical analysis revealed that Sparks had no drugs or alcohol in his system. As of Monday afternoon, "it looks like an electrocution," Vitek added.

Vitek said he personally viewed Sparks' body at the morgue at Lincoln General, but saw no signs of a burn to any parts of the body. He was later told that a 110 volt charge probably wouldn't leave any burns, but that same charge is responsible for roughly 90% of all fatal electrocutions, he said.

Another inmate told Vitek that he had given Sparks the partially dismantled fan without knowing it would be dangerous. "A lot of the inmates liked Sparks, I even had two tell me that they had promised his (Sparks') father they'd watch out for him at the pen," Vitek said.

Vitek, who had gone 50 hours without sleep following the death and a Friday incident at the complex, said "I almost cried" when I realized that the fan may have been responsible for the death. Three years ago Vitek allowed the inmates to have fans in their cells, in an "attempt to make the place a little more bearable," he added.

The fan has been sent to a testing laboratory to determine if it could have caused the death, Vitek said.

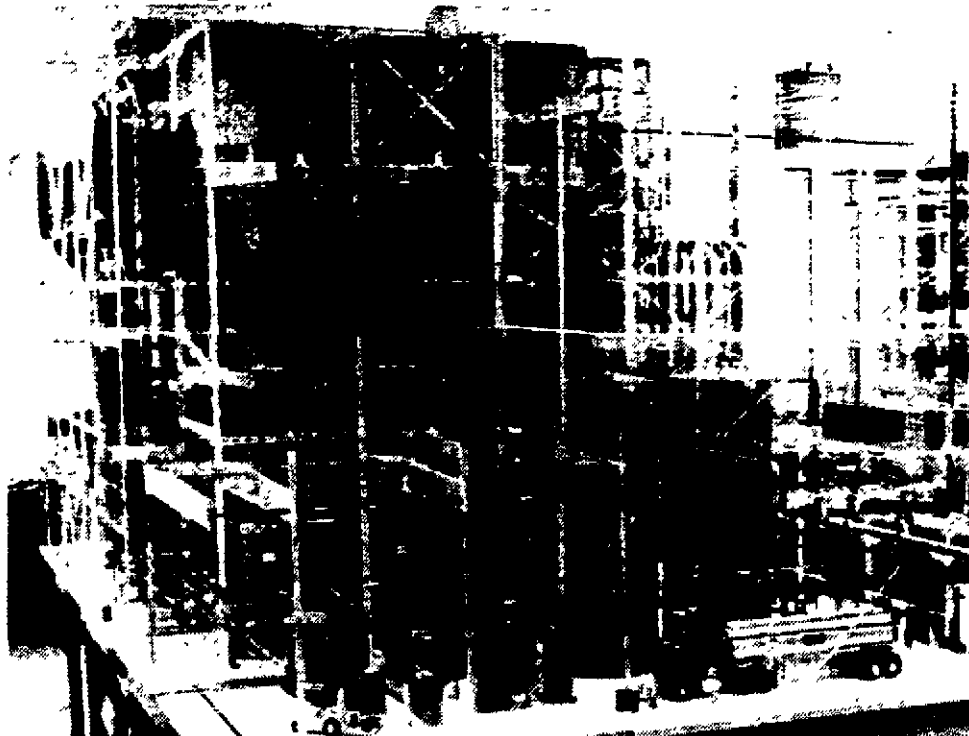

Why was a 16-year-old in the penitentiary? He had been convicted of third degree arson in Cheyenne County late last year after he allegedly stole a doctor's car, removed some drugs from it, and set the car on fire, Vitek explained.

He was given a one-to-three-year sentence and was in the adjustment center at the pen awaiting a decision on his placement. Some youthful offenders are kept at the reformatory, separate from the pen.

During his evaluation he was "involved in a blanket party," Vitek said. Another young inmate was covered with a blanket and assaulted by fellow inmates, he explained. "Sparks admitted to his involvement in the episode," he added, and was kept at the pen.

Although Vitek has no idea of exactly how many other youthful offenders are at the complex, he said it "isn't uncommon, nationally, to have people this young in prison."

More on penitentiary, Page 20.

When completed, this model will expand across 40 tabletops.

After its completion the model will be shipped to the Wyoming plant and used for training employees and explaining the plant's operation to visitors.

Building the model will take three men working full time more than a year to complete.

But building the real thing will take a work force that will reach a peak of 1,800.

How does a sparsely-populated agricultural community prepare for that kind of invasion?

Nickel buys bread or eggs

San Antonio, Tex. (AP) — A promotional campaign by a supermarket chain has bargain-hunting grocery shoppers jamming stores to buy bread for a nickel a loaf, eggs for 5 cents a dozen and milk for 19 cents a half-gallon.

The advertising campaign will continue indefinitely, according to officials of the Handy Andy Supermarkets in South Texas.

San Antonio newspapers are selling every copy they print on Thursdays when the chain's ads include coupons for the bargains.

The first advertising insert appeared June 30 and offered bread for a nickel a loaf, eggs for a nickel a dozen and margarine for a nickel a tub, with coupon. Within hours after the newspapers hit the streets, every copy was sold. Extra copies were printed and sold out, too.

The next week, coupons hawked milk for 19 cents a half-gallon and hot dogs for 10 cents a dozen.

The coupons are good for a week and supposed to be limited to one per family. Handy Andy officials won't say what's coming this week, but a local newspaper executive says: "We have had the inserts under lock and key to protect them."

"We have had people calling all night long wanting to buy 200 copies of the newspaper before dawn," the executive said. "The callers say they can take the ads inserts and sell them for 50 cents each."

"If you have any doubts about the effectiveness, just go to Handy Andy and watch the milk and hot dogs move out," he added.

One problem for the newspapers is that thefts from coin-operated newspaper boxes have jumped on Thursdays. Instead of taking out just one newspaper, some people have been grabbing the whole stack.

Morris Mathieu, vice president for advertising and promotion for Handy Andy, said results of the advertising campaign so far are inconclusive.

"We're trying to increase sales and profits and traffic in our stores," Mathieu said.

The manager at one Handy Andy store said sales "are simply fantastic. They are buying everything in the store, not just the specials."

A woman who shops regularly at Handy Andy said the store's prices "seem a shade higher" than a competitor's, but she liked the layout, cleanliness and array of products offered.

Handy Andy has 51 supermarkets in South Texas, with 35 stores in San Antonio and the rest in Houston, Austin, Corpus Christi and Kerrville.

The same coupon advertisements are being published in newspapers in other cities where Handy Andy has stores.

Handy Andy's main competitor in this area is H.E.B. Supermarkets, a Corpus Christi-based chain with 142 stores.

Both Handy Andy and H.E.B. are private corporations and neither publishes sales or profit figures.

A spokesman for H.E.B. in Corpus Christi refused to comment on the Handy Andy promotions and would not say whether his chain intends to counter the competition.

H.E.B. promotes "everyday low prices" and has advised potential customers in advertisements not to be misled by low prices on single items.

Exclusive 'club' meets in Sweden

Saltsjobaden, Sweden (UPI)

Members of the world's richest "club" gathered Monday at an elegantly appointed hotel on the shores of a peaceful Swedish peninsula to talk over oil policy that could have a decisive effect on the world's well-being in coming years.

The 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is opening a two-day meeting Tuesday with its most immediate problem — what price to charge for the remainder of 1977 — settled in advance.

The ministers asked for privacy and got it. A fleet of well-guarded helicopters ferried them from Stockholm Airport to the luxurious Grand Hotel in a remote suburb of the capital. Troops and police with dogs stood guard at the hotel.

Two of the ministers — Libya's Izzedin Al Mabrouk and Iraq's Tayeb Abdel Karim — said the group would discuss "production programming," the withholding of oil from international markets in order to keep prices high.

Al Mabrouk described production programming as "very important" but added, "I won't say we are going to take a decision."

Saudi Arabia, OPEC's biggest producer, has always been against such an idea.

Sources close to the conference said Venezuela's minister, Valentin Hernandez

Acosta, will suggest OPEC take measures to enforce energy conservation in western countries through some form of rationing linked with production programming.

Sources close to the meeting said the question of price differentials likely will be one of the most important issues at the session.

This concerns the premiums that some countries charge for high-quality oil or oil with easy access to market — or the money that some lose on their low-grade oil or inaccessible oil that has to be shipped a long way.

$12.70 for "Arabian market" crude.

The benchmark price was settled on last month. At the same time, the OPEC nations ended a dispute over pricing that had split them into two blocs since the last meeting in Qatar last December.

The split was settled this month and all OPEC members would up with equivalent rates when Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates increased their prices 5%. The 11 other members of the production group at the same time canceled their own scheduled 5% increase that would have priced their oil at rates above the Saudis.

Police pushed through the pickets with "flying wedge" formations, opening paths for the plant buses to get through.

Hardliners among the pickets replied with mass charges against police lines and a hail of punches, kicks and tossed bottles.

An estimated 15,000 strike supporters marched through London after the buses entered the plant.

Grunwick managing director George Ward, who fired the 60 employees when they went on strike, denied his firm is a sweatshop. "This firm is not anti-union," he said. "It is non-union."

After being fired, the employees joined the Association of Professional, Executive, Clerical and Computer Staffs, a white-collar union known by the acronym APEX. The dispute stems from the subsequent demand by APEX that it should be recognized as official representative of all Grunwick employees in bargaining over pay and conditions.

Trade unionists, British police battle

London (AP) — Fighting erupted Monday between 4,000 police and 11,000 leftists who tried to shut down a film processing plant involved a 10-month-old trade union dispute. Police said 30 persons were injured, including 18 officers, and 70 persons were arrested.

The battle flared as militant leftists staged their biggest show of strength in the dispute that began last Aug. 23 over union recognition at Grunwick Processing Laboratories Ltd.

The controversy has grown to a full-scale ideological showdown between leftists and rightists on trade union policy.

Following the clash, the government was reported considering changes in Britain's liberal picketing laws, including limiting the number of pickets allowed at a site and restricting pickets to those with a "legitimate" interest in the dispute.

Home Secretary Merlyn Rees told the House of Commons violence was a feature of modern life, but police injuries were "unacceptable."

The Grunwick dispute has dragged on for months, with pickets making daily attempts to prevent 320 employees who have refused to join them from getting into the plant in company buses.

Eighty Grunwick employees were fired last August when they struck over pay and working conditions.

Many of the sacked workers were joined in trying to close the plant Monday by thousands of miners, engineers, white collar workers and other unionists from around the country. The "day of solidarity" with the strikers also drew 30 left-wing members of Parliament, militant students and young revolutionaries.

As in the previous attempts, police were on hand to make sure those who wanted to could get through.

British law allows pickets to talk to the workers to try to persuade them to join the strike. If they do not want to listen, as in this dispute, pickets do not have the right to stop them from working.

Stolen gold, silver bars said impossible to trace

Santa Ana, Calif. (AP) — The $1.1 million worth of gold and silver bars and currency stolen by robbers who lured a coin storage firm president to his vaults will be easily redeemable and impossible to trace, the president says.

The bandits stole the money Saturday from Swiss Vaults Inc. and also took the 1976 Lincoln belonging to company president Vincent Carrano after binding him in a chair, police said.

Carrano, who freed himself and pressed an alarm button after the men had left, said the mints could be melted and recast easily for resale.

"If they changed the bag the money is in — it's United States currency — we'd buy it back," Carrano said Monday. "A company would want to know who they were dealing with, but if a responsible person walked in and said they had silver to sell, you'd buy it. We do it every day."

He didn't do as he said to

Providence, R.I. (AP) — State Atty. Gen. Julius C. Michaelson, who gives radio tips on preventing burglaries, apparently does not take his own advice.

The Michaelsons arrived home from a trip as burglars were pilfering their liquor cabinet. Police believe the thieves sneaked in through an unlocked front window.

A yellow pillowcase stuffed with several bottles was lying on the living room rug. The doors to the liquor cabinet were open and a bottle was on the floor next to it. The burglars apparently fled when they heard the family's approach.

Carrano said the company still has some assets on hand. He wouldn't say how much. The currency taken was fully insured, he added.

Carrano told police he went to his office Saturday afternoon to meet a man who had telephoned asking to deposit a valuable coin collection but the man pulled a pistol, ordered Carrano into his office and tied him in a chair, taping his mouth.

Several other men entered, rifled two vaults, stacked bags of loot on a handcart, wheeled it to the parking lot and loaded Carrano's car.

"These guys had to have some knowledge of how the business operated," said Sgt. Richard Cokerly.

Carrano said he was confident the robbers were not company insiders.

"But they did know what they were doing, that's for sure," he said.

Blueberry crop hit by weather

Marmora, N.J. (UPI) — The severe winter just past cut the size of this season's blueberry crop in New Jersey, the second largest producer of the fruit in the United States and the largest marketer of fresh blueberries. Phil Sheridan, executive secretary of the growers' trade association, estimates 1977 production at 20-22 million pounds, or 20% less than last year's near record crop. Sheridan says about 60% will be sold fresh and the remainder processed.

Jury considers Mansonite's plea

Los Angeles (UPI) — A jury deliberated Monday a verdict which could almost immediately set free one of the original hard core members of Charles Manson's bloody band.

Leslie Van Houten, now 27, originally sentenced to death, admitted at a second trial completed last Friday that she took part in the 1969 slayings of Leno and Rosemary LaBianca, a middle class couple picked by chance the night after the Sharon Tate killings.

Her attorney, Maxwell Keith, did not seek her acquittal at the retrial. But he did call for a verdict of manslaughter or second degree murder, rather than first degree murder which the prosecution demanded.

A manslaughter or second degree verdict would mean she would be released within a few days since she has already been in custody more than seven years — the maximum for second degree murder under a new state law.

The six-man, six-woman jury was locked up in a hotel over the weekend before taking up its deliberations Monday.

Eight other key members of the drug-addicted hippie cult are behind bars and Miss Van Houten could be the first returned to society as rehabilitated. She told the jury she had shaken off Manson's hold and claimed she was acting under his Svengali-like control when she stabbed Mrs. LaBianca more than a dozen times.

Manson is at the state prison at Vacaville, Calif. He is eligible for a parole hearing in December, 1978, but a member of the Department of Corrections said recently there was "little likelihood of his getting out for many, many years, if ever."

Miss Van Houten's close girlfriends, Susan Atkins and Patricia Krenwinkel, are serving life terms at the Frontera Institution for Women. They are also eligible for parole next year, as is Charles "Tex" Watson, who was tried separately for the Tate-LaBianca killings.

Steve "Clem" Grogan and Robert Beausoleil are also serving life terms for the murders of a Hollywood stunt man and a musician who ran afoul of the Manson clan.

Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme was given life for her 1975 assassination attempt on President Gerald Ford. Sandra Goode, who along with Miss Fromme had been Manson's original devotees, is serving a four-year term for conspiracy to send death threat letters to corporate executives.

Defecting pilot to join Taiwan air force

Taipei, Taiwan (UPI) — The Communist Chinese pilot who defected to Taiwan with his MIG19 fighter will join the Nationalist air force and win an instant promotion to lieutenant colonel, a military spokesman said Monday.

Fan Yuen-yen, 41, of Szechuan, met with Taiwan air force commander-in-chief Gen. Sze-tu Fu and said he wanted to continue his military service with Taiwan, the spokesman said.

Sze-tu granted Fan's request, the spokesman said, and offered him the rank of lieutenant colonel. Fan will be commissioned Friday, probably at the same time he receives 5,000 ounces of gold worth about $800,000 — his bounty for defecting from the mainland with his MIG19 jet.

Taiwan routinely offers rewards of gold and choice military assignments to Chinese pilots who defect with their planes.

Fan was a squadron leader on the mainland but he had no formal military rank because the communists have eliminated most military hierarchies as a capitalist product. Nationalist officers decided to name him a lieutenant colonel.

Although Fan's bounty will be paid in gold, the pilot will have to sell the precious metal to the Taiwan government if he wants to convert it to cash.

Fan, a 41-year-old father of three, veered away from the mainland while on a routine patrol mission last Thursday, outraced his Fukien-based comrades across the Formosa Strait and landed in Taiwan.

"I came here to seek freedom and human rights which are totally lacking on the mainland," he said.

A U.S. military spokesman Monday denied a local news report that American experts have begun examining Fan's MIG19. The 15-year-old plane is of little interest to western intelligence since it has long since been superseded by later models in the Soviet air force.

Papers signed

Arkansas Gov. David H. Pryor signed extradition papers Monday for two Oklahoma prison escapees being held in Portland, Ore., on suspicion of killing six persons in three states.

Earl Van Denton, 27, and Paul Ruiz, 29, have been charged with capital murder in the slaying of Marshal Marvin Richie of Magazine, Ark., and Army Engineers park ranger Opal James of Havana, Ark.

Groucho grinning

Groucho Marx is waving his eyebrows at nurses and grinning again, and hospital spokesmen said Monday the 86-year-old comedian may be well enough to go home by the end of the week.

"He's starting to do whatever it is he does with his eyebrows," said Larry Baum, spokesman for Cedars-Sinai Medical center in Los Angeles.

Marx has been showing steady improvement since he was admitted on June 24 with a mild form of pneumonia, just a day after he had been released following hip surgery, Baum said.

Christina Onassis, principal heirress to the fortune of shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis, and Alexandros Andreadis have been granted a divorce by an Athens court and the Orthodox Church of Greece, sources close to the families said Monday.

They said the joint divorce petition was granted Saturday on grounds of incompatibility after two years of marriage.

Judge can find no slander in 'Scottsboro Boys' movie

Winchester, Tenn. (UPI) — A federal judge Monday dismissed Victoria Price Street's claim that a National Broadcasting Co. movie on the "Scottsboro Boys" slandered her and invaded her privacy. He said he would let the jury decide her charge of libel.

In her $6 million suit, Mrs. Street claimed NBC libeled her, slandered her and invaded her privacy with "Judge Horton and the Scottsboro Boys." She said the movie portrayed her as a "scarlet woman" whose claim of being raped by nine black youths in 1931 was questionable.

NBC attorneys Monday afternoon asked for directed verdict of acquittal on all three counts. Ruling in his chambers, District Judge C. G. Neese granted the motions for acquittal on charges of slander and invasion of privacy but said he would let the jury decide whether Mrs. Street was libeled, attorneys said.

His ruling had not been announced to the jury, which was once again shown the movie in question.

The replay of the movie followed testimony by Dan T.

Carter, author of a book on the "Scottsboro Boys" that was the basis for NBC's movie.

Carter, an Emory University professor who wrote "Scottsboro: A Tragedy of the American South" as his doctoral dissertation, testified he spent more than two years researching the case and wanted only to "see the truth come out."

Mrs. Street contends she and another white woman were raped by the nine black "Scottsboro Boys" on March 25, 1931.

Fiat executive ransomed unharmed

Paris (UPI) — The head of Fiat in France and Brazil, kidnaped by self-styled revolutionaries 89 days ago, was found smiling and safe on a park bench in Versailles Monday following payment of an undisclosed ransom by his family.

Luciano Revelli-Beaumont, 58, was described by police as well but exhausted. His captivity began April 13 when he was snatched by four men in front of his luxurious Paris Apartment and held for millions of dollars in ransom.

Following directions from an anonymous telephone tipster, police found Revelli-Beaumont seated on a bench in a tiny square near the former royal palace in Versailles, about 15 miles from Paris.

Squinting in the first daylight he had seen in nearly three months, the smiling silver-haired Fiat executive greeted police without a word, officers said.

Revelli-Beaumont's son, Paolo, told a news conference the family paid a ransom for his father's release. For security reasons, however, he refused to reveal the amount of the ransom or how the money was delivered.

The kidnapers at first demanded $30 million in ransom, but later lowered the amount to $8 million.

Police doctors who examined Revelli-Beaumont said they found him in good health. His family took him to a hospital for a complete examination and a long rest, police said.

Minutes after his release, the "Committee for Socialist Revolutionary Unity," which claimed responsibility for the kidnaping, warned it will go on fighting until all business tycoons, judges and police "had been made accountable to the working class."

Judiciary police announced Monday night all police services in France have received a photograph of one of the four kidnapers.

Police are holding former Dominican Republic diplomat Hector Aristy, a friend of Revelli-Beaumont's family, on charges of having been implicated in the kidnaping. Aristy was arrested last month.

Carter dealt setback

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Monday handed President Carter a major setback in his bid for a worldwide halt of plutonium production, rejecting his effort to discontinue the Clinch River nuclear breeder reactor project.

Carter wanted to limit new funds for the plutonium-producing reactor at Oak Ridge, Tenn., to $33 million, enough to complete design work and phase out the project.

That effort was defeated by a 49-38 vote.

But proponents of the project, led by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, pressed for a compromise $75 million authorization which would allow the project to remain in its current status and retain key scientific personnel. Church's proposal was adopted by voice vote immediately after the Carter position was rejected.

The authorization bill for the Energy Research and Development Administration included $150 million for Clinch River, the same amount budgeted by former President Gerald Ford, but Church and other supporters wanted that cut in half in hopes of avoiding a Carter veto.

"We will hold in abeyance Clinch River without giving any signal," Church said, claiming it would not hinder Carter's effort to win an international nonproliferation agreement.

But Sens. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., who led the administration argument, and Spark Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, warned of a future in a plutonium economy.

"If we don't (end proliferation) we'll have to abandon this planet and seek other planets," Matsunaga said.

Bumpers called Carter's stand "a very bold step" and said it was necessary to prevent "incineration of the world."

The Clinch River vote was a double setback for the administration because the Senate earlier voted to appropriate $14 million for the Barnwell, S.C., nuclear fuel reprocessing plant, a device designed also to produce plutonium.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., was defeated, 69 to 23, in his effort to eliminate all but $1 million of the $14 million appropriation and restrict that to a study.

Earlier in the day, William H. Young, vice president of the architect-engineer firm for the Clinch River plant, told a Senate subcommittee he was being "speculative" in a 1973 memo calling Oak Ridge "one of the worst sites ever selected for a nuclear power plant."

"I believe that the Clinch River design is both safe and appropriate," Young testified, "that the project is timely and absolutely necessary, and that excellent progress has been achieved in the past four years by a devoted national technical team ... in the face of many adverse circumstances."

City Council should dump dump gate fee proposal

All is not well at the city dump. When last we wrote about Lincoln's sanitary landfill, it was to suggest lengthening the hours of operation, a plea which went nowhere.

We have operated under a self-imposed ban on writing about the dump since then, but recent developments compel us to further explore the subject.

Last week Public Works Director Dick Erixson mentioned to the City Council — "in passing," he said — that a gate fee for use of the landfill should be considered. Erixson confirmed this week that his department will soon forward a proposed fee schedule and perhaps other recommendations regarding dump operations to the council for its consideration.

As stated above, there are some problems at the dump. Lincoln police threatened a crackdown this spring on people who didn't pack their loads tightly enough and scattered trash along the roads leading to the landfill. Residents along routes to the dump had been complaining about the debris.

Further, according to Erixson, his department still gets occasional requests to keep the dump open longer hours each day, and to allow picking. Some people have suggested that the city establish a fee for picking and if liability problems can be overcome, to allow picking at the dump after hauling hours.

But what concerns Erixson the most, he said, is the use of the Lincoln landfill by people who bring in large loads of refuse from outside the county, and the traffic congestion at the dump.

A gate fee might decrease traffic congestion, he said, and it might discourage use of the dump by people outside the county.

While it might do both those things, it also might cause some public relations problems for the city and it wouldn't be an equitable charge.

Lincolinites already pay for the operation of the landfill through the tax-supported general fund. Charging a gate fee would be, in effect, taxing twice. It would also work in favor of established garbage haulers, denying the average citizen — because of the economic inhibition — the option of doing his own trash hauling if he so desires. A large number of people also take loads to the dump which the garbage haulers won't take. Why should they be charged twice for doing something that won't be done by the garbage haulers? A gate fee imposed in part to discourage out-of-county people from using the dump can also be opposed on philosophic grounds. Why should a charge be levied against the general public, which supports the dump with taxes, in order to discourage a relatively few outside users?

The city should devote some attention to the landfill. Traffic congestion problems might be alleviated by having personnel out there who will actually show people where to park. Large trucks should be kept in an area separate from where small trucks and cars back in to dump their loads. Traffic congestion might also be kept down by extending dump hours.

But the council should junk the proposal to establish a gate fee. The landfill is a service citizens should not have to pay for twice.

Rain at ten-year high

The window-rattling, tree-bending thunder and wind storm which shook Lincoln and the surrounding area early Monday morning was accompanied by a nice soaking rain.

The storm broke more than ear drums. It broke a prolonged downward trend in moisture accumulations.

The almost three inches of rain recorded Sunday and Monday morning was the most rain which has been officially reported as falling in Lincoln over a 24-hour period in the past ten years.

Although perhaps too late for some, it offered blessed relief nonetheless.

And it's another feather in the cap of the guy at the University of Nebraska who predicted a return to average rainfall this spring and a few gullywashers this summer before a dry, hot spell in late July and early August.

We'd almost forgotten how good a night-long rain could sound.

We rate earthshakingly 'moderate'

By Elizabeth Wehr
Staff Writer
Congressional Quarterly

Washington — Congress is about to double federal funding for earthquake prediction and related research, thanks to a timely conjunction of political and natural phenomena.

The active elements that have generated strong congressional support for the long-pending Earthquake Hazards Reduction Act include:

—A widely held belief among geologists that they may soon be able to forecast earthquakes.

—Press reports of an early quake warning system in China that meshes sophisticated seismological data with observed changes in animal behavior and the physical properties of well water.

—A White House desk for a longtime booster of earthquake research.

—A kill rate for earthquakes in 1976 that is said to be the second worst in recorded history.

The Senate easily passed the bill that would commit more than $200 million over a three-year period for stepped-up scientific investigations, plus engineering studies and research into the social and legal implications of earthquake prediction.

The money would be split equally between the U.S. Geological Survey and the National Science Foundation. The legislation also requires the President to develop a plan for applying research results to practical programs. Two House committees have approved similar legislation and little opposition has materialized.

The most active backers of the bill hail from California, whose San Andreas fault has for years devoured backyards and inspired warnings of disaster, and South Carolina, whose less-celebrated Woodstock fault caused a major quake in Charleston in 1896 — only yesterday to geologists.

California Sen. Alan Cranston (D) has been pushing for boosted earthquake research since 1972, the year after the San Fernando Valley quake that killed more than 60 persons. By 1976 Cranston had enlisted South Carolina Sen. Ernest F. Hollings (D), chairman of the Senate subcommittee with jurisdiction over the matter. Presidents Ford and Carter were also allies: both had recommended massive increases in earthquake research budgets.

And Carter's science adviser is geophysicist Frank Press, long a leading advocate of earthquake prediction.

But nature apparently provided the boost the legislation needed. According to Cranston aides, congressional awareness was heightened during 1976, when earthquakes killed an estimated 700,000 persons in China, Guatemala and Italy.

Though no more earthquakes than usual occurred that year, the tremors hit densely populated regions. Congressional supporters of the earthquake bill argue that with more Americans settling in quake-prone regions on both coasts, the capacity to foresee major quakes is urgently needed. They say that advances in the earth sciences make accurate predictions a real possibility, perhaps within a decade.

Except for Rep. Morris K. Udall (D-Ariz.), who brought the matter up during hearings, few congressional backers of the bill have publicly discussed the relationship between nuclear power plant sites and increased knowledge about the causes of earthquakes.

But, particularly in California, scientific and environmental groups have contended that more seismological data — and more co-ordinated use of that data in siting the plants — is crucial for public safety. Udall also held a one-day hearing in June on California's Diablo Canyon plant, which may begin operations next summer despite its proximity to a not-so-recently discovered offshore fault.

Only a few skeptics have weighed in against the proposed new emphasis on earthquake prediction. Two Colorado-based social scientists warned in a study published in February that the "target community" of an earthquake forecast could be ruined between the time a quake was predicted and the time it occurred — if it did occur.

Property values and tax revenues would plunge, they said, while insurance costs would skyrocket, unless steps were taken to forestall these effects.

And not all geologists are convinced that it will be possible to predict earthquakes any time soon — at least, not "with enough certainty to justify the expense of evacuating Los Angeles," as one university researcher put it. He added that top priorities should be more stringent building and siting standards and enforcement, and a more informed public.

Another argument was advanced last year by Rep. Steven D. Symms (R-Idaho) during debate on an earlier version of the bill. Siding with fiscal conservatives who thought the measure too costly, Symms declared that earthquake risks were "a price we have to pay for living on this planet."

Andy Young sets his talk to showtime

Washington — There is precedent for it of course: Adlai Stevenson did it back in the early 1960's. But the question still remains. What business has the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations hosting a television talk show?

The answer, of course, is none. And yet, his own TV talk show is exactly what Andrew Young has in the works.

Somebody ought to give the man and his boss an elementary lesson in proper use of the public airways. For a high administration official to produce, star in and sell his own "news" program — whether to public television or by means of commercials to independent stations — spans, in one audacious leap, the bridge between government regulation of the broadcast industry and government control.

The man needs to decide which side of the dugout he wants to be on. If he wants to continue to pitch, he will have to let others report on the game; if he'd rather play Howard Cosell, he'll have to get off the mound. That is just your basic fourth grade lesson on the relationship between the press and the government.

Of course, it is not the only lesson that was taught on days when Andy Young was apparently playing hooky, just the most recent. And one of the most important. Sooner or later President Carter has got to begin to ask himself whether his protegee's continued performance — for that is what it is, it is not diplomacy — doesn't threaten to do more damage than good to the very human rights causes Young is making so much noise about.

Good judgment. That's what he lacks. And an ability to restrain a consuming romance with the sound of his own voice. Like one of his predecessors, Daniel Patrick Moynihan, he doesn't want to be an ambassador, he wants to be a senator, a personality, the epicenter of a continuing series of verbal earthquakes, and now a talk show host.

President Carter could do worse than give him the chance to be just that — on a full-time basis. Somebody has said that we live in a world where anybody can be famous for 15 minutes. Andy Young, cabinet member, has used up most of his allotted time.

The wonder of it is that the President, who has been within ground-shaking distance of the tremors on so many occasions, doesn't realize that the clock has ticked out on his ambassador's effectiveness. And on just about everybody's patience.

Talk show host, indeed. Enough, already!

Schlesinger pushing for pro-industry NRC

Washington — Energy chief James Schlesinger has been blunted but not yet defeated in a move viewed by some White House insiders as a crass exercise in personal empire-building in the field of nuclear energy development.

A bid by Schlesinger to have Joseph Hendrie, a prominent physicist and like Schlesinger a Republican, appointed as chairman of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission has been temporarily stalled, but not yet blocked, by environmentalist foes.

According to sources involved in President Carter's choice, it has now narrowed down to Hendrie, who worked under Schlesinger at the old Atomic Energy Commission, and Peter Bradford, former chairman of the Public Utilities Commission in Maine and a protégé of Democratic National Chairman Kenneth Curtis.

Both Hendrie and Bradford have been offered seats on the commission, the successor of the AEC. Of five seats, three are vacant. The third vacancy has been offered to Kent Hanson, an MIT nuclear engineer who is a Democrat but regarded like Hendrie, as pro-industry on the critical question of the pace of nuclear development. The law says that no more than three of the five may come from one political party.

Inasmuch as another Republican and pro-industry man, Richard T. Kennedy, already sits on the commission, the environmentalists are warning that appointment of both Hendrie and Hanson will give the forces of more rapid nuclear development a majority — and make Schlesinger, a former AEC chairman, happy — whether Hendrie becomes chairman or not.

With three pro-industry types on the commission, with or without Hendrie as chairman, Carter's own go-slow policy on development of nuclear breeder reactors will be jeopardized, the critics warn. And they express fear that Schlesinger's unique rapport with Carter will enable the energy boss to pull off the coup.

"The thing got turned over to Schlesinger at the start," one insider says, "and these appointments (Hendrie and Hanson) got made before anyone woke up. Then the anti-industry types said, 'We're going to appoint the remaining guy (Bradford) and Hendrie's not going to be chairman.' That, of course, is bold talk because it is the President, himself a nuclear engineer, who does the appointing and it is Schlesinger who has Carter's ear — in too many areas, his foes argue.

The fight over the pace of nuclear energy development is especially critical because it can have ramifications in the whole arms control and nuclear proliferation area. Generally speaking, the industry favors use of plutonium, a key ingredient in nuclear weapons that is derived from used uranium fuel, to build "fast-breeder" reactors. Environmentalists and arms control advocates fear what will happen to increasingly available supplies of plutonium. Carter, siding with them so far, has been committed only to use of existing-type reactors, at least until better plutonium controls are assured.

Jack Gormond

Though it is considered inconceivable that Carter knowingly would install a lineup that would function counter to his basic nuclear policy, the dire warnings are a measure of the concern about Schlesinger's influence. Foes say Schlesinger favored folding the NRC into his new Department of Energy and this gambit would be the next best thing for him.

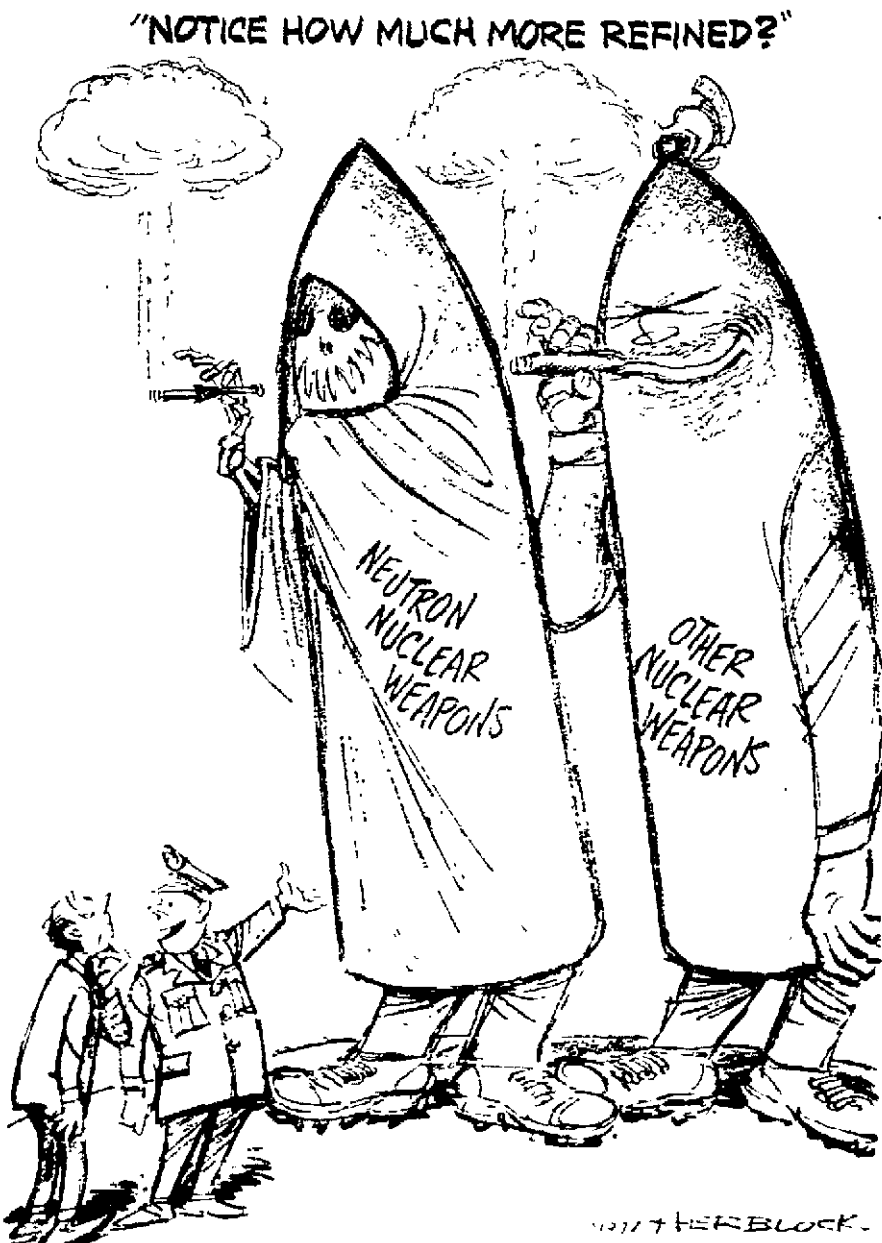

Despite the handball maneuvering, Schlesinger's standing with the President is said to be as solid as ever. And as for the fears that Schlesinger is becoming a kind of Svengali, one presidential confidant says: "He's got the president's ear, all right, but he's not going to sell him a bill of goods. The idea of Schlesinger hoodwinking him is absurd, especially in this field."

As for the fear that an NRC with three members perceived as pro-industry undermining Carter nuclear policy, this aide says: "We're not worried about it. Almost anybody considered for the NRC is going to be perceived as pro-industry. The President told us some time ago, 'Find me some pro-nuclear environmentalists for the NRC.' Well, animals like that just don't exist."

On Capitol Hill, the environmentalists are already alerted. Sen. Gary Hart, chairman of the subcommittee that will have to confirm the nominations (but not the choice of NRC chairman) says: "In a closely divided commission we would want to know before confirmation who the chairman will be." Hart says he won't make it "conditional" to confirmation, but he implies that Carter's failure to indicate his choice could slow confirmation. As for Schlesinger's advocacy of a pro-industry NRC, Hart says while he may get it by Carter, "he can't wing it by the Congress."

Our real strength

I have a great and urgent concern about the neutron bomb that may soon be added to our arsenal of weapons. Is there no end to the lengths to which we are willing to go to prove our "superiority"? Here are some of my specific objections.

This weapon would leave buildings and other property standing, but would kill people in a horrible death by radiation. Is not human life sacred?

Economically, increased production of weapons is extremely wasteful. Those persons who are really concerned about the problems of inflation and unemployment — and have no tie to the military — recognize that the same money invested in civilian ventures produces many more jobs and strengthens our economy. The statistics in the Transfer Amendment indicate the possibilities.

Many Americans are concerned about supposed Soviet military superiority. The Soviets are indeed preparing to fight the Chinese along their joint border, and so are gearing up their production to that end. However, their weapons system is of vastly inferior quality to ours in terms of accuracy. What difference does it make, anyway, when each nation has the capacity to destroy the other using only a small fraction of available power?

It seems to me that by trying to prove superiority by creating more horrible, inhumane, immoral weapons, we become only more like the people to whom we wish to exhibit our superiority. True strength lies not in ingenious methods of human destruction, but in a healthy economy, a government that is responsive to the people, adequate health care, education, housing and public assistance programs. Most of all, strength lies in a respect for life that prevents individuals or governments from having the will to destroy fellow humans no matter what political or economic ideology they espouse, or of which they are victims. Do we have the courage to become a leader in developing that quality of strength?

Chicago hopeful on Fremont line

By Edwun Darby
Chicago Sun-Times

Chicago — James R. Wolfe is delighted with the Chicago and North Western railroad's line west to Nebraska.

"That's our racetrack into Chicago for the Union Pacific," says Wolfe, a third-generation railroad man who came to the North Western's presidency by way of a law career.

The North Western's racetrack runs from Chicago to Fremont, Neb., bypassing Omaha with its congestion of rail lines. At Fremont, North Western freight cars move onto the Union Pacific tracks; the interchange works the other way for Union Pacific cars bound for Chicago.

"We've made major improvements in the Nebraska-Chicago line these past years," says Wolfe, "and our cars hughball down the line and through to the West Coast. The Union Pacific is competing from the Missouri River to Chicago with the Santa Fe and the Burlington. The line is important to the Union Pacific and increasingly important for us."

Among other things, "increasingly important" means that the North Western was interchanging 170,000 carloads with the Union Pacific at the Fremont gateway back in 1972. By last year that total had jumped to 301,000 carloads.

Last month the North Western quietly marked its fifth anniversary of an employee-owned company. It's turned out employee-ownership has worked to the railroad's advantage in an unusual way.

The purchase agreement stipulated that the railroad company could not pay dividends to stockholders for the first five years so, as Wolfe says, "we had to plow every cent back into improving the railroad."

The improvements made possible that racetrack line to Nebraska and over the years ahead Wolfe hopes to upgrade the line further and extend the improvements to the North Western's line from Nebraska to Shawnee, Wyo.

Black gold glitters there. The North Western is into a joint venture with the Burlington Northern to put a 110-mile spur off the Shawnee line into the Powder River Basin low-sulphur coal country. If the project goes through, "it would give us a fantastic transfusion of revenues and make us a different company."

The five-year record has been a good one for the railroad, except for 1975 when the North Western, like most Midwest lines, got hit not only by the general recession in the economy but also by a steep drop in the movement of grains. The North Western went $8 million into the red, but came back to earn the same amount last year for a $16-million swing in profits.

This year, corn and wheat farmers, looking at depressed prices are stacking up big tonnage in storage instead of shipping.

Retarded adults learn job skills

Beatrice (AP) — Tools and tinker toys become keys to the future in a makeshift classroom where "yesterday's make-believe is today's promise."

The toys teach retarded students such job skills as aligning a screwdriver with a screw. One floor below, advanced students put together fuel pumps, carburetors, printed circuits and parts for pivot irrigation systems.

Up, down, in, out, are simple concepts that vocational education teachers must get across to students at Beatrice State Developmental Center.

Staffers were stumped when packages of multicolored yarn made by residents failed to meet quality control standards until someone noticed the yarn was being placed on the cardboard crooked.

"We finally realized the retarded students didn't know what straight meant," said Murray Schmechel, vocational training director. "It's very important to be able to push that board straight into a saw or make a bed straight."

Clients are "reinforced" for work with money that can be spent at the building's snack bar and candy counter.

Schmechel and other center educators bolder the philosophy that limited teaching skills, rather than limited learning skills, are to blame when retarded people don't learn.

Twelve of Schmechel's students are over 60 years old. Most are young adults, who are expected eventually to move into communities and work in sheltered workshops.

Schmechel believes a better image has helped the retarded to live and work in communities. Two decades ago, he said, "Some people looked upon them as someone who would attack their sons and daughters, as people who should be sterilized."

Employees in sheltered workshops sometimes are given "the junk work. But what would you think of my group when it does work that pays $7 an hour?" said Schmechel.

When they're not learning work skills, vocational education students might be priming at shampoo sinks and mirrors, or practicing safety precautions at a make-believe intersection.

A client who is ready to hold a job "can't go out without realizing what a stop sign is or that people see how we look," said Schmechel.

The vocational training building's rows of low tables and makeshift partitions are a sharp contrast to a brightly colored new room across campus, where students sit or lie around a water-filled "moat" and a bridge leading to a sand-pit.

Sights and sounds are used to stimulate students in TACDAL, a program for the mentally and physically handicapped. Most of TACDAL's students "are not cute little kids who can be placed. Some, frankly, are grotesque," said Hugh Sage, director of developmental planning.

Sensory stimulation, affection and attention are primary teaching methods in the program.

Twenty-one-year-old Dwight wailed when his bare feet were plunged into the cold water of the classroom's make-believe moat. A teacher apologized to Dwight, kissing him.

"Sticking Dwight's feet in the water made him aware of his feet" and diverted him from a habit of injuring himself, said Bruce Hauser, one of Dwight's teachers.

Affection and education also are paired in the center's foster grandparent program.

"When I first got this boy, he screamed constantly," said Gertrude Germeroth of Odell. "He's learned to wind the music box now."

Mrs. Germeroth, a retired teacher who's in her fifth year as a foster grandparent, likes "getting out and meeting the children. It's good for me, too. I'm all by myself at home."

Sights and sounds also are important educational mediums in living quarters, administrators said.

As renovation gets under way, turn-of-the-century structures clash with the cathedral ceilings of modern buildings on the campus.

Although Supt. M. E. Wyant described living quarters as "still overcrowded," partitions have been placed between beds to allow more privacy. "Institutional greys and blues" are being replaced by bright colors and varied textures, and ceilings are being lowered to cut noise, a "behavior contagion."

Although some older buildings still have 25 beds to a room, two persons share more homelike rooms in new cottages or remodeled buildings.

Wheat harvest clipped along during hot, windy past week

Nebraska's wheat harvest advanced rapidly during last week's hot, windy weather with 75% of the crop cut to date, the Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Monday.

Virtually all of the wheat is ripe and quality and test weights have generally been above average, the service said in its weekly crop-weather report. A year ago, the wheat was nearly 50% harvested and 95% ripe; normally the crop is 45% cut and 65% ripe by this time of the season.

Corn is mostly in good condition, but dryland fields in much of the southeastern part of the state are hurt badly, the report noted.

"In many cases, silage value is all that remains" of the corn crop, the report stated. Statewide about 20% of the corn is silking, well ahead of last year, the service said.

Sorghum and soybeans are reported mostly in good condition, but chinch bugs are a problem in milo for much of the southeast and hot weather has slowed soybean growth.

The second cutting of alfalfa hay is 65% complete, well ahead of last year. Yields are said as good in some localities, but not as good as expected earlier.

Oats harvesting is progressing well, the service said, and statewide more than 50% is harvested.

Weekend rainfall in eastern Nebraska is not reflected in the report. Topsoil moisture supplies declined substantially for the second week in a row with 72% of the counties reporting supplies short and 26% reporting adequate, said the report.

Subsoil moisture supplies also declined somewhat, but remain well above levels of a year ago.

Rainfall received throughout the state during the past week included:

Grand Island ..... 1.28 North Platte ..... 4.20
Norfolk ..... .60 Valentine ..... 2.70

Precipitation via sections since the beginning of the growing season, April 1, as compared to longtime averages follows:

Northwest — 8.58 inches (1977), 9.14 inches (normal)
North Central — 12.73, 10.26
Northeast — 12.68, 12.01
Central — 12.74, 11.23
East Central — 11.23, 12.75
Southwest — 10.55, 9.21
South Central — 10.62, 11.32
Southeast — 10.35, 13.40

Vintage planes welcomed at Minden Stinson event

Minden (AP) — More than 100 persons flew into the Minden airport this weekend for a Stinson fly-in. Twenty-three of the vintage planes made the trip.

The longest flight was by William Hadley of Renton, Wash., who made the 1,375-mile trip solo.

Among the planes was a Stinson L-5 with military markings, manufactured during the war years for use as an air ambulance or a coastal spotter equipped with a 500-pound anti-submarine bomb.

Bill DeLisle, of Bingham, owner of the L-5, said "I wanted to own an old war plane, but the fighters and bombers were all too expensive. This plane I could afford and I also use it to check cattle and windmills in the Sandhills."

The meet also had an unscheduled "reunion" of two sister planes. Don Wooton, of Kansas City, Kas., owner of N-4216C was surprised to meet James Schroll, of Manhattan, Kan., owner of N-4215C.

School chiefs urged to fix two budgets

The president of the Nebraska State School Boards Association is urging local school boards to prepare two different budgets this summer.

J. Paul McIntosh said that school boards should be aware they may not receive as much money from the state as expected.

McIntosh's warning came after opponents of LB33 announced last week a petition drive to repeal the additional $20 million for next year included in the state aid to schools bill.

As a result of the petition drive, he said school boards may not know by the Aug. 15 budget deadline just how much money they can depend on, he said.

If the petition drive succeeds, it will reduce state funds received by school districts with high property valuations per student and increase them for low valuation districts, according to Ross Rasmussen, executive director of the association.

Rasmussen also said an attorney general's opinion is being sought in case the petition drive is successful in placing LB33 on the ballot, but the vote to repeal that bill fails.

If the Department of Education should distribute the money to schools in 1977-78 on the basis of the formula in the School Foundation and Equalization Act, the distribution will have been made on the wrong basis, Rasmussen said. The intent of the petition drive is to reduce the state funding back to its former level of $55 million annually and revert to the original formula for distributing the money.

Dr. Paul A. Johnsgard, professor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, will display duck decoys and life-size carvings of birds this month on second floor of Love Library, 13th and R Sts.

Johnsgard, an expert on waterfowl, also will have eight books he has written on birds and wildlife at the library.

The display includes about 20 pieces, including life-size figures of ducks and geese, a swan and a massive figure of an owl perched on a piece of driftwood.

New industries North Platte aim

North Platte (AP) — The City of North Platte is asking the North West Regional Commission for a $5,000 grant that officials hope would help attract new industry and create 250 new industrial jobs by 1981.

The North Platte Development Corp. would use the grant to design, print and mail direct-mail brochures to 2,000 "target industries," according to Chamber of Commerce Manager Gary Toeppen.

The city will need new industry to stop a large out-migration of workers when construction of both units at the Gerald Gentlemen power plant near Sutherland is completed in late 1981, Toeppen said.

U.S. peddling death—Thone

Rep. Charles Thone, R-Ne., said Monday America has become "a death merchant" because of military arms sales to other countries.

America has become "an arms peddler" in the Middle East where both sides are being armed, Thone said.

The foreign military assistance authorization bill now in a House-Senate conference committee would earmark $1.3 billion in arms for Israel and $0.9 billion to Egypt, Syria and Jordan.

"I voted against this $3 billion rip-off of the American taxpayers when it was before the House," he said.

Thone said it is up to Congress to stop indiscriminate giveaway programs that are spreading U.S. weapons around the world. President Carter hasn't followed through on his campaign promises to cut down on arms sales, Thone charged.

Thone also blasted U.S. arms being given to African countries surrounding Rhodesia.

Hastings appeal questions ruling

Hastings (AP) — The City of Hastings has appealed to District Court a Civil Service Commission ruling concerning the employment of two animal control officers.

The commission ruled in late May that Glenn Wolfe and Dean Doctor had not resigned their position because they had not signed resignation letters. The city unsuccessfully argued the two had given oral resignations.

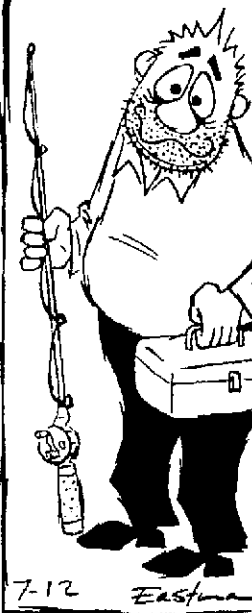

The court has not set a hearing date.

Hastings man committed to regional center

Hastings (AP) — A Hastings man was committed to the Lincoln Regional Center Monday by Adams County District Court Judge Norris Chadderdon.

Chadderdon found Robert Rupprecht, 24, to be a sexual sociopath and ordered him committed to an indefinite term.

Rupprecht pleaded guilty in February to one count of child stealing and one count of indecent exposure in connection with an incident last October which involved a 5-year-old girl.

Since March, Rupprecht has been held at the Lincoln Regional Center for evaluation.

Insulation code OK is delayed

By Gordon Winters
Star Staff Writer

Action was postponed Monday on the proposed new energy-saving insulation ordinance after several City Council members said they want to make changes.

Councilman Bob Sikyta, who owns a heating and air conditioning firm, said he wants to eliminate a requirement that new homes have insulated basements.

He was supported by Councilman Joseph Hampton, a former developer who is now an investor/businessman. Hampton said requiring basement insulation may force prices higher than some people can afford.

The executive director of the Lincoln Homebuilders Association said last week that the provision will add about $500 to the cost of a new home. Other estimates have been lower.

Sikyta said the requirement will stand in the way of people who wish to purchase a home, but wait until they have saved additional money to finish the basement.

Another chance in the proposed new law is being sought by Steve Cook. He wants the law to allow innovative approaches to reducing heat loss from buildings.

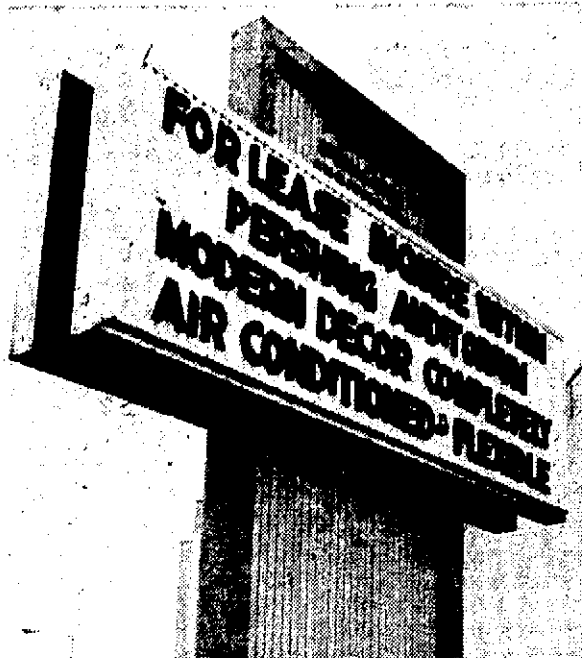

At the council's informal luncheon meeting Cook said new approaches could be allowed by using an "envelope" approach in which the allowable heat loss is computered for the entire structure and the builder may attain that in any manner he wishes.

That method is allowed for buildings larger than six-plex apartments under the proposed ordinance.

If the method is allowed for smaller buildings, Cook noted, builders would have the option of eliminating basement insulation by beefing up insulation in other parts of the home.

Resisting the changes proposed by the other council members was Councilman Bob Jeambey. Instead of rewriting the insulation regulations themselves, he said, the council should send the entire ordinance back to the Code Study Committee, which spent several years drawing it up.

Pershing spaces yours for a fee

Want to throw a big party? A really big party that would make the feasts of Louis XIV look like a coffee klatch?

How about renting a city auditorium? Prices vary at Pershing Auditorium, but there is one to fit your need — $450, $500, $750.

Just think . . . you could have a place to hold a family reunion where you could hold more relation than the King Family's. You could have a Sarah Coventry party and invite Roca, Hickman, Bennet, Holland and Panama.

You would not have trouble fitting yourself into Pershing's schedule. There's not much of anything booked there for the rest of the summer — only a convention and possibly a rock concert, both in August.

Summer has always been a slow time for business, but this summer, well . . . things are slower than any summer for a long time, Pershing Manager Ivan Hoig said.

So Hoig put out the "For Rent" sign so people would know that the auditorium is available for their use.

So far, Hoig said he has received one inquiry. Someone wanted to rent Pershing on a more permanent basis — he wanted to lease office space.

Keeping Near South character stressed

By Nancy Waller
Star Staff Writer

The Near South Neighborhood Association took a look Monday night at what consultants had devised as a preliminary plan for the neighborhood's development.

According to Darrell Beach, making the presentation for Bolinger-Smith consulting firm of Kansas City, Mo., the Near South Neighborhood is "one of few areas around the capitol building with residential character."

With preservation first in mind, the plan calls for preventing the incursion of industry and commercial businesses into the area and limiting through traffic and on-street parking.

Other goals outlined by the consultant include developing a full range of community facilities including playgrounds and open spaces, expanding human services and the upgrading general quality of life.

The Near South neighborhood is bounded on the north by G St., on the south by South St., on the west by 13th St. and on the east by 27th St.

Beach suggested that a "hierarchy" of streets be devised to minimize through traffic. This system would include throughways and smaller arterials which would spill into "collector" streets for use by block residents. Speed limits also would be lowered.

Traffic signals would be installed at 13th, 16th, 17th and 27th Sts. along A St. and at other school crossing areas.

A "pedestrian network" would also be established to include "urban trails" which would tie together cultural and commercial points.

Beach urged that stricter zoning ordinances and land use measures be enacted to protect the area.

"I know down-zoning is a dirty word to some of you here," but it is your strongest tool" in carrying out this plan, Beach said.

Generally opposed by developers, down zoning would reduce the number of dwelling units per acre thereby reducing population density.

Additionally, "the commercial area near South St. should not be allowed to expand," Beach said. "Your goal should be to keep your neighborhood residential."

Objections few to school budget

By Nancy Hicks
Star Staff Writer

"The fact that this room is not overcrowded with hundreds of citizens is an indication that the community supports good schools," one Lincoln parent told the Lincoln Board of Education Monday night.

Only eight taxpayers spoke at the hearing on the proposed $45.7 million school budget for 1977-78, and none asked that the budget be lowered.

There were six requests, including three from parents, that the board extend education for the severely handicapped students to 12 months. This would make summer school for these children almost one month longer than summer school for other Lincoln youngsters.

"I know that the schools must have equal education for all children. We are asking though that the school board take some steps to assure children with multiple handicaps of 12 months of education after this year," said William Templemeyer, director of the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation.

And several parents explained the importance of this year-round education for the handicapped youngster, something that was provided when LOMR ran the educational program.

Budget explanations by Supt. John Prasch took longer than the public testimony in the 50-minute public hearing for the budget.

The proposed budget, up by more than 8% over this year's budget, pays for five hours and 15 minutes of school time for an estimated 27,539 students over 178 school days.

The cost for each hour of education for each student will be $1.78 with $1.11 of this in instructional salaries, according to Prasch.

And the cost to the property owner for these school services will be an estimated 55.351 mill levy, plus an additional .196 mills for the Educational Service Unit 18 budget.

This is less than last year's tax bill for schools and means that the owner of a house appraised at $40,000 will pay $778.26 in total school taxes next year, down $31.50 from this year.

Final budget decisions will not be made until late July or mid-August and the final mill levy figure will depend on the district's total property value plus the outcome of a current petition drive to overturn $20 million in state aid to Nebraska schools.

If the petition drive is successful, another 2.089 mills will be added to cover the lost state aid, and the owner of that $40,000 home will pay another $29.25 in property taxes to the schools.

City places transportation apart

After several years of talking about it, the City Council has now created a new Transportation Department in city government.

The new department will be created of parts of other departments and will include the Lincoln Transportation System, the city traffic engineer and other segments of city government dealing with street and parking problems.

A director for the new department has not been named. Mayor Helen Boosalis said she plans to advertise for the position, but preference will be given to people already employed by the city.

On another traffic matter Monday, the council held a public hearing on proposed street projects. Few speakers appeared.

Among the projects slated for this year are the widening of Fremont from 48th to 70th, rebuilding of 20th and Cornhusker and widening of 27th from N to B and various resurfacing projects.

Included in the six year plan of street improvements is the construction of the Northeast diagonal from 16th and P to 27th and Fair, the widening of 27th from Potter to Superior and other projects.

On other routine matters, the council took the following actions:

- Approved the final plat of Southwood Hills Second Add., located south of Sandstone Road between Southwood Dr. and Goldenrod Lane.
- Denied application of DAMA Enterprises for a retail beer-on sale only license at 1701 P and application of Ralph Massey as manager.
- Approved change order for $352 to extend fire sprinkler system into newly remodeled area of juvenile jail cells.
- Approved reappointment of Pat Darling, William Fenton, Harold Fouts, John Benson, Richard Freeman, Jim Hacker, Claude Hof, L.W. Hoffman, Glenn Holm, Jack Hyland, Richard Noel, Charles Thomsen, Robert Waldman, Jack Way and William Whitmer as members of the Code Study Committee.
- Approved reappointment of Jack Way as member of Dangerous Building Code Board of Appeals, Harold Fouts as member Building Code Board of Appeals, Paul Gustafson and Forest Boyum as member warm air, heating, ventilating and cooling examiners.
- Approved appointment of Eugene W. Farleigh to fill unexpired term of Ivan Edson to Board of Electrical Examiners.

- Approved reappointment of Floyd Hinkley as a member of Housing Authority Board and appointment of Rich Butler as member of Community Development Task Force to fill unexpired term of David Stempson.

- Approved final plat of Witte Subd., south of Pioneers and between 38th and 40th.
- Vacated east-west alley between 43rd and 44th and Walker and Huntington Ave.

Sikyta down on another Boosalis choice

Councilman Bob Sikyta is once again objecting to a nomination by Mayor Helen Boosalis.

At a Monday council luncheon attended by the mayor, Sikyta told Mrs. Boosalis he does not want to see Irv Peterson replaced on the Charter Revision Committee.

Mrs. Boosalis has recommended that Irv Peterson be replaced by former City Councilman Max Denney. So far the mayor has submitted four names for the committee. There are eight openings on the committee because of terms expiring and resignations.

Sikyta said he wanted Peterson, a former Lincoln mayor, to stay on the committee because of his long experience.

Mrs. Boosalis, however, said continuity is good, but committee members can sometimes become entrenched like bureaucrats and need to be replaced.

"I am looking for balance on that committee," she said. She said she considers social-economic status, profession, place of residence and place of business among the qualifications for a committee post.

An attempt to avoid heightened emotions on the issue was made by Councilman Joe Hampton, who said that perhaps the mayor could reappoint Peterson among her next four nominations, which will be made in several weeks.

"If we want to get down to an arm wrestling match let's do it on the next four . . . and not get into this public bickering," he said.

In addition to Denney, the mayor has proposed the appointment of Nancy Ginger, an employee of Lancaster County Services, to replace Jill Hunt, who moved from the city, and Oscar Sandberg, a stockbroker, to replace Fran Minard, whose term expired. She is proposing the reappointment of James Wehrwein.

The Charter Revision Committee considers what changes in the city charter should be placed on the ballot. Currently the committee is thinking of once again placing on the ballot a proposal to eliminate the in-lieu-of-tax payment by the Lincoln Electric System.

Boosalis discusses city annex of fairgrounds

Mayor Helen Boosalis said Monday that she is considering recommending that the city annex the State Fairgrounds so it can collect sales tax there.

She brought up the possibility while City Council members complained that the State Fairgrounds is pulling convention business away from Pershing Auditorium.

When the auditorium loses business it means that city taxpayers must subsidize it with tax dollars. Last year Pershing had its largest deficit in history, $95,000.

The mayor had no specific estimate on how much revenue the sales tax on the fairgrounds would bring in, but she thought it would be substantial.

Her comment came while council members began the task of poring through the mayor's recommended budget, which was released last week.

In action on that budget an effort by Bob Sikyta and Leo Scherer to eliminate a $20,000 program which would hire a part-time lobbyist in Washington, was turned back by the other five council members.

The mayor tried to establish the program last year, but the council turned it down.

In other action several council members criticized the recently established, car-pool/vanpool program, but decided to delay a possible budget cut until later in budget deliberations.

Trash fee possible

City officials are considering the possibility of establishing a fee for citizens who haul their trash to the city landfill.

Public Works Director Dick Erixson said the fee may be around $1 to $1.50.

Iowa man charged in Omaha bar stabbing

Omaha (AP) — An Iowa man was charged Monday with second-degree murder in connection with the stabbing death of an Omaha man in a weekend bar fight.

Dennis D. Olofson, 34, who gave police a rural Pottawattamie County Iowa, address was charged in connection with the death Saturday night of Robert N. Felthiem, 25, of Omaha.

The knifing took place at The Barn, formerly Barnes' Lounge. Witnesses told police they saw Olofson throw ice cubes at Felthiem, then stab him several times when the two began fighting.

Police said Olofson was accused of beating another man with a cane in the same bar about two months ago. No charges were filed in that case, police said, because the victim refused to testify in court and wanted the matter dropped.

Judge Fred Montag set Olofson's bond at $10,000 with the provision that he can post 10 per cent of that amount in cash and be released.

Thunderstorm took violent path

By Deb Gray
Star Staff Writer

The heavens ripped apart, the rain came down, and city employees spent Monday mending the tracks of the deluge.

The thunderstorm that brought 2.97 inches of rainfall to Lincoln early Monday morning also brought destruction: several fires, electrical power outages and disrupted telephone service.

Lightning struck at least four Lincoln residences, an apartment building, a country club and a rectory causing usually minor blazes at each.

Firemen answered 18 storm-related calls between 1:20 and 2:46 a.m.

Considerable damage resulted when lightning struck the Sacred Heart Rectory, 3120 S St., shortly before 2:30 a.m. Fire was mostly confined to the ceiling of the two-story building, but smoke filled the second floor hallway and an adjoining room. No one was injured, fire officials said.

Power lines fell at 30th and Plymouth,

14th and Marion and 72nd and Ballard, causing outages of varying lengths.

According to Frank Grant of the Lincoln Electric System, the city had four major areas where power was out.

— From 56th to 74th Sts. and from A to O Sts., where power was out from 1:45 a.m. to 3:46 a.m.

— From 70th to 112th Sts. and from A St. to Pioneer Blvd. Residents in this area were without power for 38 minutes, from 1:45 a.m. to 3:46 a.m.

— From 17th to 40th Sts. and from A St. to Pioneer Blvd. No power existed from 1:45 a.m. to 3:46 a.m.

— From Bradford Drive to Rathbone Road and from Stratford Ave. to Ryons. Power was out from 1:45 a.m. to 3:46 a.m.

Grant said LES received reports of isolated outages in other parts of Lincoln. All power was restored by mid-Monday morning, he said.

Jim Vanderslice, public relations spokesman for Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph, said that about 2,100 telephones were out of service after the storm.

The area served by LT&T's main office at 15th and M Sts. suffered the most damage, Vanderslice said.

The other center of damaged service was at the 48th and South St. station.

The electricity in Monday morning's air apparently damaged a transfer switch in the generator that supplies power to Bryan Memorial Hospital.

Power went off not only during the storm, but also from about 1:30-3:30 p.m. Monday afternoon.

Bryan public relations director Jim Gember said the outage did not stop operations at the hospital because it used its auxiliary power supply.

But the rain offered a bit of good news to those city residents who like to cook over fires at their picnics. Because of the moisture, the Parks and Recreation Department lifted its fire ban in all city parks.

Turbulent weather leaves cooler temperatures behind

Cooler air spread over Nebraska Monday, trailing a cold front that produced thunderstorms, tornadoes and heavy rainfall in eastern and north central sections of the state early Monday.

Fourteen buildings were destroyed on the Joe Vinton ranch near Eli in north central Nebraska. Some trees were downed in the area, but there were no injuries.

Downpours accompanying the storms were welcomed. Davey, in northern Lancaster county, reported the most rainfall with 3.75 inches. Garland, located about 17 miles northwest of Lincoln in Seward County, received 3.30 inches while Malcolm had 3.03 and Raymond 3.00.

Lincoln recorded a whopping 2.97 inches, the greatest amount of rain received here in a 24-hour period since June 6-7, 1867.

Thousands of residents of Douglas County were awakened early Monday when 43 tornado warning sirens were turned on after a funnel cloud was sighted in Valley. The Omaha Public Power District reported seven main power outages as a result of the storm.

The Norfolk Weather Service reported winds gusting up to 70 miles per hour. At Stanton, tree limbs were downed and a haystack caught fire from lightning.

Baseball-size hail was reported five miles southwest of Fairfield in Clay County. Fairfield itself also received hail, egg-sized with jagged edges.

Lincoln's badly needed rainfall brings the yearly precipitation toll to 15.24 inches thus far this year, still 1.02 inches below normal.

Warmest spot in the state Monday was Scottsbluff with 90 degrees, the coldest 48 degrees at both Alliance and Sidney.

Nebraska farmers requested to relate wants to Congress

Democratic National Committeewoman Frances Ohmstede is urging Nebraska farmers to let Congress know they support higher loan and price supports.

Mrs. Ohmstede said that "farmers cannot survive on the prices listed in the House farm bill." She said the proposals included in the Senate version of the bill are more acceptable.

"Anything less than the prices listed in the Senate bill would send the country into a major tailspin," she asserted.

Mrs. Ohmstede, from Guide Rock, was a member of the Democratic National Platform Committee. Then candidate Jimmy Carter told the committee that the nation's farm policy should "guarantee adequate price supports and a parity level that assures farmers a reasonable return on their investments." Farmers should remind President Carter of his campaign promises, Mrs. Ohmstede said.

Nebraska YAF seeks opinions on appointments

The Nebraska Young Americans for Freedom will be polling 10,000 Nebraskans to find out opinions concerning President Jimmy Carter's new domestic appointments.

Terrell R. Cannon, state chairman, said "We are in agreement with the fears expressed by thousands of Americans about Carter's foreign policy appointments."

The poll questions the level of congressional involvement persons want in government hiring and asked those polled to specify which congressmen should take the lead in monitoring Carter appointments.

Cannon said the results of the poll will be released within the next few weeks and sent to Nebraska congressmen.

Nebraska captured his heart

By Lynn Zerschling
Star Staff Writer

Jim Fras is an entertainer, a storyteller, a songwriter.

Now he spends his days fixing pianos instead of playing them. The exquisite mandolin hangs on his basement wall.

And his matchless accordion is stored away, but never forgotten by the man known to many Lincolinites as "The Smiling Russian." Music has been the major theme throughout his 52 years — from his home on the shores of the Black Sea in Russia to West Germany and finally to America.

Fras is celebrating a trio of anniversaries this year, anniversaries of which few others can boast: 25 years ago he and his family arrived in the United States; 20 years ago he became a naturalized citizen; ten years ago the Legislature selected his original composition to be the state song.

"I just can't believe it," the talkative musician said, still enthralled after a decade. "It's all so wonderful."

When he and his family immigrated to the United States in 1952, they were sponsored by the Lincoln Council of Churches.

"I didn't know what this Lincoln, Neb., was. It sounded beautiful to my ear."

He's been in love with Lincoln and Nebraska ever since.

For nine years he worked on composing a song which would honor his adopted state. He has a hard time describing how the song, "Beautiful Nebraska," came to him. After nine years, he wrote it in an hour.

It all started, he said, when he asked his wife Irene, who was ironing at the time, if she'd like to go for a drive in the country. She did, so they drove around near Roca, stopped in at a tavern and had a glass of beer and later drove to a field.

"I walked out to the pasture — it was so beautiful, you know — laid down and looked up at that blue Nebraska sky. Nebraska has the biggest sky in the world," he exclaimed, his arms stretching out to embrace the universe.

It was then that he saw a cloud floating across the sky, encountered a brief rainstorm and saw a rainbow arch across the heavens. Right then, he had the song.

"I'm no lyricist," he admitted, but he rushed right home and put the words and notes down on paper.

That feat was all the more amazing because Fras, who plays nine instruments, has never had a music lesson in his life and, he claims, he can't read a note of music. Yet he arranges it, composes it and plays it. Beautifully. Effortlessly.

"People often ask me how much money I made from that song. I can't believe it. I didn't write this for money," he said with something akin to horror.

In fact, during the eight years he spent trying to get the Legislature to adopt his song, he spent a lot of his own money traveling to schools, clubs and conventions plugging his composition.

He even slept in his car when money was low. When he ran out of gasoline, he borrowed more, so he could get home to Lincoln.

"I'm completely satisfied with the way the song has been used," Fras said.

The song is sung by school children and at special events and, in his own words, "it's used as an anthem — just as I had dreamed."

He has written a number of songs and given them to the Air Force. One of his favorite pieces, "I Love Roses and You" was recorded by the U.S. Air Force Symphony Orchestra.

He credits his wife Irene, a 24-year employee of Russell Stover Candy, for inspiring him to keep up with his music through the years.

Although Mrs. Fras says she is not musical, she said, "I can tell if something he's played is good or bad."

"She's my best critic," said Fras, of 2931 S. 58th St.

Many Nebraskans will remember Fras when he played in his three-piece combo and later, when he entertained on his own, usually playing the piano, organ or, his favorite, the accordion, which is unlike any other.

The accordion's polished black and silver surface gleams in the light, and the hundreds of inlaid rhinestones twinkle as do the stars in Fras' Nebraska skyscape.

Instead of the traditional keyboard on one side, there are black and mother-of-pearl buttons. Those buttons make it possible for him to produce sounds ranging from a string orchestra to a lonely clarinet or a sexy saxophone or a galloping polka. He plays everything from classical music to jazz.

When his foot stops tapping, he puts down the accordion, apologizing for his performance.

"I never missed a key when I performed. I was in shape then," he said. "Now, I'm so rusty I don't like to play it anymore."

"Sometimes," he muses, "I don't even know where I put it."

He has found a more relaxing pursuit now. He tunes and rebuilds pianos, doing most of his work in the smaller towns and communities around the state.

It's meeting the people that he loves and sifting through two bulging scrapbooks filled with mementos, letters and newspaper clippings about his life, his family, his music.

More than money, what Jim Fras says he appreciates the most are the cards, thank-you letters and crayoned drawings from school children who have heard him play his favorite "Beautiful Nebraska."

Fras' thinks he really has found "the good life" in Nebraska.

Wronged wife's patience lauded

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 16 years and have four children. The oldest is 15 and the baby is 2. My husband (I'll call him "Joe") is a NCO in the U.S. Army. I thought our marriage was solid, but when he came home last month after serving 13 months in Korea, he seemed quiet and moody. Then he dropped the bombshell in my lap when he told me he had "fallen in love" with an 18-year-old Korean girl who is now four months pregnant with his child!

He says he loves me but can't turn his back on this girl because when she was 17, she had a baby by a Canadian soldier who deserted her.

Joe wants to divorce me, go back to Korea, marry this girl and bring her (and her child) here, so she can have her baby here. He says in time she may find another man to love and marry her, then he'll divorce her and marry me.

Joe is 38 and I am 35. I know he really loves me, but he feels guilty about what he did in Korea and takes pity on this girl. I told him I loved him too much to divorce him. (Was that wrong?)

I know if I let him go to marry her, he'll regret it later. What do you advise?

HEARTSICK IN TEXAS

DEAR HEARTSICK: I think you're wise to hold off rushing into a divorce. Although Joe doesn't deserve any good conduct medals for his behavior in Korea, it's to his credit that he's willing to accept the responsibility for his actions. An alternative plan would be to send the Korean girl money for her confinement and child support. It makes more sense than breaking up a 16-year-old, four-children marriage so that he can hastily marry an 18-year-old girl, divorce her later and remarry you again.

The word from here is to hang in there and keep your marriage intact. Good luck. Let me know what you decide to do. I care.

DEAR ABBY: SINGLE

SIMON wrote to say that as a bachelor he is through accepting party invitations unless he can bring his own date. And you said that most hostesses invite bachelors to provide escorts for the single women.

The concept that most bachelors are invited to parties only to provide escorts for single women is a screaming insult to all single men!

Why must a party have an equal number of men and women? There is no need for a man or women to feel out of place at a party without a partner unless, of course, the party is an orgy.

SINGLE BY CHOICE

DEAR SINGLE: For my part, guests should be invited to parties for their personalities — and not to balance the number of males and females. (P.S. I've never attended an orgy, but I am under the impression that any number can play).

DEAR ABBY: How can a woman tell for certain whether a man's proposal of marriage is sincere?

PROPOSED TO

DEAR PROPOSED: If a woman doesn't know a man well enough to know whether he's sincere or bluffing, she doesn't know him well enough to marry him.

Real live detectives are no match for books

Louisville, Ky. (AP) — After treating two young boys to a tour of their facilities, Louisville police detectives were told they could do better, the way Encyclopedia Brown does.

David Meckle, 8, and Kevin Masterson, 9, got the special tour after asking the police department for permission to take the detective examination.

"If you will not give us the tests, we will understand," the boys wrote. Instead, they were shown "wanted" posters, the mugshot library and the lineup room, where they took their places and barely reached the 4-foot, 6-inch marking.

Finally, Carl Yates, the department's information officer, asked them "Did you think detective work would be this hard?"

"I thought it would be harder than this," Kevin responded. "I thought it would be more like what Encyclopedia Brown does."

Encyclopedia Brown, Kevin explained, is a fictional 10-year-old boy in one of their school books who helps his father solve mysteries.

He charges 25 cents a mystery," Kevin said. "He's real smart."

New York — Have parents become too selfish to give up their pleasures on their children's behalf? That's the opinion of many college aid officers. They see an increasing number of students having to rely on student loans rather than parental funds to pay their way through college. When the young people graduate, they have tremendous debts to pay off.

A story typical of the attitudes of many parents is told by John Reeves, financial aid officer of the State University of New York's College of Environmental Science in Syracuse.

He says his department recently put together an aid package for a student, requiring no loans but asking the parents to pay $300 a year. The parent told Reeves he had a "better" offer from another school — one that asked no

000. Graduate students may owe $10,000 or more. Under a new law passed last year, graduate students in health fields may borrow up to $50,000.

Many parents encourage children to take loans because, as students, they can get the loans at 7% interest, paid by the government during the years they're in school. The parents promise that after graduation they will take over the student's payments.

Some parents fulfill this promise. But, say the loan officers, many others don't.

Once the student is working and on his own, he may be embarrassed to ask his parents to pay off the debt. The parents, though feeling a twinge of guilt, may not bring up the subject.

One aid officer told my associate, Anne Colamosca: "Many parents have come to believe that sacrifice is old-fashioned. It's every man for himself." Rudy Santo of Fordham University in New York City, where some 90% of the undergraduates have student loans, says: "Many parents are no longer willing to give up three weeks' vacation or a dinner out for their children's education."

Other aid officers aren't as hard on parents. Richard Biondi, past president of the New York State Financial Aid Association, says: "I just don't think most parents I run across are being irresponsible. They just can't meet all their expenses."

Today's penniless parent has a mixed bag of problems. If he'd bought a slightly smaller home, or made do with fewer consumer goods in order to amass more savings, his fixed expenses wouldn't be so high.

On the other hand, parents feel they want to give their young children (as well as themselves) the best standard of living they can afford.

Inflation has made it impossible for many families to get ahead of the expenses they build into their budgets many years ago. The increasing incidence of divorce also siphons off money that might otherwise have been used for college.

At age 18 or 19, middle-class youngsters have little understanding of how hard it can be to repay $5,000, especially on annual salaries of $8,000 or so that they'll likely have when they first start working. So they're willing to take big loans for fancy colleges, rather than go to a less expensive school. Students from poorer families, by contrast, are less willing to go into hock, aid officers say.

The full import of what they've done hits students after graduation. The youthful "mortgaged marriage" has become commonplace in the 1970s. A young couple today may start out with $10,000 in debts, which makes it hard to start families, buy a house, or treat themselves to consumer pleasures.

Charles Zuber, of the American Bankers Association, says many bankers are finding that they can't give mortgages to couples in their mid to late twenties, because they still have too much to repay on student loans. The burden of being in debt too soon will probably affect this generation's happiness and way of life for years to come.

Cleansers, medications are dangers for visiting children

By Joanne Farris
DEAR JOANNE FARRIS: My grandchildren are coming to visit us next month. We haven't had little people in our house in a long time. My husband has been checking out the obvious hazards like lamp cords, bric-a-brac, getting plastic glasses for the bathrooms and patio, etc., but we wonder what else we may need to do to make our house safe for the children so they and we can share a happy visit.

ANSWER: Two important things which are often overlooked when young children visit are household cleansers and medications, which may be stored in locations handy for the users but potentially dangerous for the children.

The Red Cross lists the following precautions to help parents (and grandparents) keep children away from poisonous substances.

1. Keep all household products out of the sight and reach of children; put them in a locked cabinet, closet or drawer.
2. If you're using a household cleaning item and have to leave the room, even for a moment or two, take the cleanser with you.

Life Begins At Forty

3. Household cleansers and medicines should always be stored separately from foodstuffs. Such items should always be kept in their original containers, which are designed to keep them safe and which carry necessary identification and information about use and antidotes in case of accidental misuse.
4. Don't take medicines in front of little children; they are prone to imitate their elders. Keep pills in child-proof bottles.
5. Never discard any toxic product where it's accessible to children.
6. Forbid children to taste medicines, chemicals, plants, or berries they find. (In your case, be sure your children have taught this important rule to their children before they come to visit you.)

7. Use extra caution with any pills that are flavored or colored; children who see them may eat them as candies.
- There are some other common-sense precautions. Be sure sharp knives and scissors are stored where the children will not get them.
- Turn pot handles to the back of the stove as you're cooking. Keep matches and lighters safely out of the reach of small hands.
- Lock the liquor closet if you have one.
- Items like shoe polish and cleaning fluid fall into the toxic category along with the more commonly recognized household cleaning products. So do fertilizers, bug sprays and insecticides.
- For safety's sake, give your yard and garage close inspection.
- Most child-proofing precautions are just plain common sense, but those of us who don't have toddlers around very often can use a few reminders of ways to prevent accidents by planning ahead.

Quiet Fiji has not yet drifted

Bau, Fiji — In a modest frame house, on the island of Bau not far from Suva, there's the ship's table where King Cakobau signed papers that ceded the 300 Fiji islands to Queen Victoria in 1874.

It's a battered piece of furniture. Round with carved claw legs.

Urging his chiefs to get under the protection of Great Britain, the king declared: "Any Fijian chief who refuses to cede cannot have much wisdom. If matters remain as they are, Fiji will become like a piece of driftwood on the sea and be picked up by the first passerby."

"The whites who have come to Fiji are a bad lot. They are mere stalkers on the beach. Of one thing I am assured, that if we do not cede Fiji, the white stalkers on the beach, the cormorants, will open their maws and swallow us."

Seven years ago on a damp afternoon in Fiji, I watched the ceremony as the young Prince of Wales gave the Fijis back to the grandsons of the chiefs who gave them to Queen Victoria.

Suva is still the capital of government. There are new hotels and talk of industries. But much of Fiji — like the quiet island of Bau — remain as they were 100 years ago.

We went over to Bau on a warm and sunny afternoon with a sweating Fijian boy poling the punt. The island is a half mile offshore from the big island of Viti Levu.

When the tide is out, islanders can wade the channel and, at a distance, seem to be walking magically on the water.

There are no roads on Bau. No cars. No bicycles. There is one telephone. Some 300 people live in thatch and grass houses and fish the reef with the same ceremonies and tabus established long ago.

The government man who got us permission to visit Bau told me: "There used to be many tabus on the island. Many people were afraid to approach it. Break a tabu and you might find yourself staying for dinner — as the main course."

"Sails had to be set a certain way for respect. There had to be a man in the bow. Even if he was alone, he had to run up to the bow. And it's hard to pole along from that position."

"Today when the women fish, there is a chief woman who tells them every detail. Who pulls on this line. And who stands exactly where."

People who broke the tabus were strung up by the heels and swung against a stone until their heads cracked.

The stone is in the church and now used as a baptismal font.

"It used to be over at the meeting house — that was a heathen temple," said the government man.

King Cakobau is buried on the hill with his Christian name, "Epini." Ebenezer.

Let's say you're in six clubs doubled and West leads the nine of spades. You win with the ace and play a low trump to dummy. When West follows suit with the ten you play dummy's king, whereupon East shows out, discarding a spade.

This is a disappointing development, and it now seems that you must go down at least one. But if you study the situation closely, a faint glimmer of hope begins to emerge. You can still make the slam if West has exactly 3-3-4 distribution, as well as the king of diamonds.

In line with this, you ruff a spade, finesse the queen of diamonds, ruff dummy's last spade, play a diamond to the ace, and ruff a diamond. As a result of these maneuvers, this is now the position:

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1♦	Pass
2♥	2♣	3♣	Pass
6♣	Dble

North
♥10 7 2
♦10

West
♥J 9 4
♦Q J 8

East
Immaterial

South
♥A K Q 5
♣A 7

You lead the A-K-Q of hearts. When West follows suit to all of them, you know you've got him over a barrel.

You continue with the five of hearts and West finds that one of his two seemingly certain tricks goes down the drain. The best he can do is ruff with the jack of trumps as you discard the ten of diamonds from dummy. But on his next play he is compelled to lead a club away from the Q-4 and allow you to score the last two tricks with the ace and nine of trumps. Never give up!

Honest truth: Nickel coffee

Barnum, Minn. (UPI) — A faded sign on the outside of Duesler's Coffee Shop in this small town 40 miles south of Duluth says: "Coffee 5 Cents."

Most visitors think the sign is long out-of-date or a "come-on" handed down from circus man P. T. Barnum, for whom the town was named.

But Eleanor and Lester Duesler still charge a nickel for a cup of coffee with a piece of pie, just as they did when they bought the shop 16 years ago.

Coffee alone costs more. It's a dime.

Late in the day Cecil Andrus, secretary of the interior, said the pipeline wouldn't reopen until his department makes an investigation.

Otherwise, the market continued in the meandering course it followed all last week.

NASDAQ gainers outpaced losers by about a 3-2 margin.

Soybean, corn futures hit season lows

Chicago (AP) — Wet weather in the Midwest and late speculative selling combined to send soybean and corn futures prices plummeting to new season lows in practically all deliveries on the Chicago Board of Trade Monday.

Beans lost 28 1/2 to 30 cents, and corn closed generally 8 cents a bushel lower. Wheat options, down about 7 cents at the close, also posted across-the-board record lows for the season.

Autry shoots Sherry out of the saddle

Anaheim (UPI) — The California Angels, staggering after five straight losses and three games under 500, fired Norm Sherry as their manager Monday and hired third base coach Dave Garcia to replace him.

Sherry, 45, was dismissed after the Angels returned from a five-game road trip with a disappointing 39-42 record and 9½ games behind the Chicago White Sox in the American League West.

The Angels, the preseason favorites in the AL West after owner Gene Autry went out and spent $5.2 million to bring in free agents Don Baylor, Bobby Grich and Joe Rudi, lost 4-2 at Texas Sunday night.

Sherry was fired almost one season after he replaced the fired Dick Williams and became the Angels' sixth manager. Garcia, 56, was given a contract through 1978.

At the same time, the Angels fired Pitching Coach Billy Muffett and hired Frank Robinson, baseball's first black manager who was fired at Cleveland this season, to fill Garcia's vacated third base coaching spot.

Robinson also will serve as the Angels' batting coach.

"We feel the team is definitely a contending club," said Angel General Manager Harry Dalton, "and has the capability to move into fired the middle of the pennant race in the second half of the season.

"And we felt that these changes would help us accomplish this."

Garcia served as a coach under Robinson in Cleveland in 1975-76 after managing in the Angels' farm system at El Paso in 1974 where the club won a Texas League divisional pennant.

"Harry Dalton called me this morning and offered me the job," said Garcia. "Of the 26 major league positions, this is the one I most wanted to have."

Playing Coach Andy Etchebarren will assume the responsibilities of pitching coach for "the next few days," the Angel announcement said.

Sherry was hired July 23, 1976, after Williams was dismissed following a player revolt led by Bill Melton. He guided the Angels to a 37-29 record to conclude the season.

Sherry said at Arlington, Tex., Sunday that he was "damned disappointed" with his club's first-half results.

In an effort to get the Angels going in the right direction last month, he named second baseman Jerry Remy as the second team captain in the Angels' 17 year history. Robinson was the first.

But the Angels lost five in a row — their longest losing streak of the season — at Minnesota and Texas.

Grich and Rudi are both on the disabled list with Grich expected to miss the remainder of the season because of back surgery. Rudi is expected back after the All-Star game.

The Angels are hitting .261 as a team and have a team ERA of 3.42. Left-hander Frank Tanana has a hired 12-6 record and fast-balling Nolan Ryan is 11-8.

Sherry, a third base coach and former catcher with the Los Angeles Dodgers and New York Mets, was the sixth Angel manager in the club's 17 seasons.

Last October he was given a one-year contract for the 1977 season, and he told reporters he would practice a low-pressure coaching philosophy.

"I think you've got to have a ball club that enjoys playing and enjoys coming to the park," he explained.

"I believe each player has to be relaxed and have confidence in himself. I try to make players believe in themselves."

Sherry joined the Angels' organization in 1969, managing Idaho Falls of the Pioneer League and serving the next two years as a coach under Angels' Manager Lefty Phillips.

He managed minor league clubs in Shreveport, La., and El Paso, Tex., in 1972 and 1973 and spent the next two seasons as manager of the Salt Lake City Gulls, the Angels' entrant in the Pacific Coast League.

He played for the Dodgers in 1959-62. His best season was 1960 when he batted .233 and hit eight home runs. He played one more year with the Mets before being released.

Sherry, born July 16, 1931, in New York City, now lives in the Orange County suburb of Mission Viejo. He and his wife, Mardie, have three children, Cindy, Pam and Mike.

His brother Larry, a Dodgers' relief pitching hero in the 1959 World Series, is now the pitching coach with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Stallworth leaves gridiron

It seems appropriate Byron Stallworth made a decision to attend radiology school this summer for a two-year course towards becoming a radiologist (x-ray technician).

Now, instead of slipping through defenses, exposing weaknesses like an x-ray, he'll be taking them.

Stallworth set the state college coaches running for game films and new defenses last season when he rushed for 1,222 yards, averaging 136 yards rushing per game.

"He's one of the most exciting running backs I've ever seen and probably the best running back I've seen this side of the Mississippi," said Doane coach Joe Glenn.

Stallworth was named the Sunday Journal and Star Offensive Player of the year for his efforts, which helped Nebraska Wesleyan to its first Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic football crown ever.

"Losing Byron is like losing 50 per cent of your offense," said Byron Stallworth.

NWU coach Harold Chaffee "He did so many things you can't coach. He was a great leader for the whole team because of his great attitude."

But Stallworth, who tallied seven touchdowns in the first four games last season and ran for 265 yards against the best rushing defense in the state, ended his collegiate football career after his junior year.

"A lot of people told me I was nuts for giving up a chance at having another good year and possibly getting a pro offer," said Stallworth, a Lakewood, N.J., native.

"But I felt it was time to get something concrete going in my life and a degree plus certification in radiology is what I want," he said. "I had fun playing, but there's not a lot of security in playing small college football. You can't do it forever."

"If I waited and played another season, everything would be set back and the radiology study would be setting me back two years," said Stallworth, who is now taking courses at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

"I met a lot of people and made a lot of friends playing football and that's the best part of my career on the field," he said. "I know I'll never forget the people."

Stallworth also earned conference baseball honors two years straight and this year hit .300 and committed just two errors as a centerfielder.

Midwest Speedway will offer a special sportsman s-only program next Sunday and resume regular super stock racing the following Sunday. Midwest owner and operator Pete Leikam also said that a special sprint car/super stock show is scheduled July 31, with special ticket rates to make up for the show in June that was partially cancelled due to rains.

Kearney State will host the National AAU wrestling camp July 18-22 for wrestlers 11 years old and up. Wrestlers from 13 states participated in the camp last year.

This year's camp will be coached by Tadaku Hattata and Osamu Watunabe, among others.

Watunabe was never beaten and never scored upon in 178 international matches, which included several world championships.

Other clinicians include Zygmunt Omowski, the Polish National coordinator for Greco-Roman wrestling and Jon Bacu, coach of the world champion Romanian Greco-Roman wrestling team.

Lincoln youths take top spots

Grand Island, Neb. (AP) — Clay W. Anderson, son of Gordon Anderson of Lincoln, shot 150 to earn first place Monday in the 36-hole par 144 Nebraska "Big 1" Insurance Youth Golf Classic at Riverside Golf Club in Grand Island.

He and the other four low scorers were chosen from a field of 72 young men aged 14 to 17 to represent Nebraska in the Independent Insurance Agents of America Youth Golf Classic Championship at Napa, Calif., in August.

Mark Maness, son of Dr. and Mrs. E.S. Maness of Lincoln, shot 151 and took second place after winning a play-off with Kevin L. Chestnut, son of Mrs. and Mrs. Gerald Chestnut of Omaha, who also shot 151.

In fourth place was Greg Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Wilson Jr. of Omaha with 153. David Clouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Clouse of Friend, Neb., earned the fifth spot with 156.

Pele consoled

Pele, the legendary superstar of soccer, gets a consoling hug and pat on the cheek from Mel Machin, Seattle leftback, after the New York Cosmos lost 1-0. Pele is retiring from soccer after this season.

Watson, Richard boost Astros

Houston (UPI) — Bob Watson hit a two-run double in the sixth inning and Houston Astro right-hander J. R. Richard fired a five-hitter to earn his first shutout of the season Monday night with a 2-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Richard, who has an 8-6 record, struck out five batters and walked two. But he needed brilliant defensive plays by center-fielder Cesar Cedeno and first baseman Bob Watson to get out of tough situations in the early innings.

Fred Norman retired the first 14 batters but Jose Cruz' single with two out in the fifth ended the no-hit bid and in the sixth inning singles by Richard and Julio Gonzalez preceded Watson's double.

Richard has allowed only 10 earned runs in his last 58 innings. He allowed the Los Angeles Dodgers one run in 10 innings in his last appearance but didn't get the decision.

In other games Monday:

Rookie right-hander Bob Stanley, making his second start since June 3, pitched a five-hitter when the Boston Red Sox won their seventh victory in their last eight games with a 2-1 triumph over the Cleveland Indians.

Stanley, who made his major league debut against the Indians on April 16, struck out four, walked three and lost his shutout bid in the fifth when Andre Thornton hit his 11th homer over the 400-mark in center field. It was his sixth win of the year.

Rusty Staub homered and doubled to drive in four runs and scored the deciding run on a two-out seventh inning single by Steve Kemp to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 9-7 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

An outfield error by Bill Robinson allowed Chris Speier to score the go-ahead run during a three-run fifth inning rally which brought the Montreal Expos a 4-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates behind the route-going pitching of Stan Bahnsen.

Right-hander Francisco Barrios struck out 10 batters en route to his sixth straight victory and Jorge Orta doubled home a pair of runs to pace the Chicago White Sox to their 10th victory in 11 games, a 4-2 decision over the Kansas City Royals.

Barrios, 9-3, yielded six hits in hurling his fifth complete game. He got all the support he needed in the first inning when the White Sox scored three runs off losing pitcher Larry Gura. Orta's double scored Ralph Garr and Alan Bannister, who had both singled, to make it 2-0. Orta then moved to third on an infield out and came in on Chet Lemon's sacrifice fly

Merwald picks right spots for good scores

By Virgil Parker

Omaha — Sarah Merwald has only broken 80 on a golf course twice in her life. But, the Omaha teenager certainly picks the appropriate time to shoot her best.

The first 79 in the life of the Omaha Marian High School junior-to-be came last month during the first round of the state women's medal play tournament in Columbus.

She duplicated that effort here Monday during the qualifying round at the 55th annual Nebraska State Women's Golf Championships to earn medalist honors.

Young Merwald bested two other teenagers — defending champion Nan Circo or Omaha and North Platte's Val Skinner — by two strokes over the demanding Happy Hollow Country Club course to claim the No. 1 seed in the championship flight.

"I sure hope I don't follow with the same kind of round I had in Columbus," Merwald said. "After my 79 there I played really bad and was in the 90s."

The field of 128 was divided into eight flights of 16 each by the qualifying scores for match play which begins with the first round Tuesday.

Medalist Merwald's first opponent will be Jane Deeter, one of three Lincolmites to qualify for the championship flight.

The trio is the same three who finished 1-2-3 in the recent Capital City championships — Jean Hyland, who won her 15th city title and is a five-time state champ; four-time state winner Dorothy Schwartzkopf, the runnerup in Lincoln; and Deeter, who finished third in the city meet.

Schwartzkopf edged the other two by a single stroke during Monday's qualifying, posting an 84.

Everybody in the field agreed on one thing Monday — Happy Hollow's huge, slick greens contributed to a lot of putting woes.

"I four-putted the very first hole,"

Schwartzkopf recalled. "I knew I'd have to start doing better than that if I was going to make the championship flight. But my mind kept wandering. I didn't really start to concentrate until the back side." Schwartzkopf recovered to a sparkling 39 after suffering through a 45 on the first nine holes.

"The greens are so large — and they're hard to read," Hyland added. "I had four three-putt greens on the back nine. I'm sure they cut them shorter than any other club in the state. They are fast — really slick."

The greens didn't bother Deeter at the outset. She used just 13 putts on the front side while scoring 39.

"But the back was different," she admitted. "I only had one three-putt green, but I was leaving my approach iron shots short."

Three players tied for the final spot in the championship flight with 87's Veteran campaigner Joan Martig won a playoff on the first hole with a par after Mimi Huston of Grand Island got in some trees with a hooked drive and medalist Merwald's older sister Lynne three-putted.

Nebraska golfer Susan Slattery of Omaha missed the playoff for the final spot in the championship flight after some untimely action on the 18th green.

Slattery watched her second putt — a three-footer for an 86 — skid by the hole about four inches. In disgust, she reached across with her putter to stab the ball back into the hole — for an 87 — which would have gained the playoff. But that little tap skipped out of the hole and she recorded four putts and an 88.

Four past champions were in the qualifying field. In addition to Circo, Hyland and Schwartzkopf, who all made the championship flight, 1966 winner Betty Marchese is entered, but she settled for a 92. Her daughter Susan qualified for the championship flight, however.

Men's city golf tourney will start

A field of 149 of the city's best golfers are scheduled to contest the Lincoln men's city golf tournament beginning Tuesday at Pioneer's Park Golf Course.

The 72-hole event will move from Pioneer's to Holmes Park on Wednesday where the open field will be trimmed to the low 80 players and ties.

Of the 149 entered, 127 are in the open division with 22 in the senior division.

Defending champion Mike Hughett will not defend his title since he is involved in the Western Junior Amateur at Purdue University this week.

Also absent from the field are former champs Dan Bahensky and Rennie Sasse, who is competing in the Public Links Championship at Milwaukee.

Racers lose: Demise near

Indianapolis (UPI) — A "mystery man" who had several million dollars he was thinking about investing in the Indianapolis Racers so the WHA team could join the National Hockey League — decided against it, officials announced Monday.

Barring "lightning striking twice" the team will not be able to attempt to join the NHL and will probably die, David Givens, general counsel for Indiana National Bank, told a news conference.

Sasse shares Public Links lead

Milwaukee (UPI) — The 6,608 yard Brown Deer Public Golf Course lived up to its reputation for toughness Monday in the first round of the United States Public Links Championship.

A field of 159 amateurs from around the nation failed to crack par on the Milwaukee County course which is hosting the tournament for the third time in its 52 year history.

Six players were tied for the lead with even par 71, while five players were one shot back. The leaders are Rennie Sasse, Lincoln, Neb.; Thomas Proben, Redford, Mich.; Richard Alan Graen, Rochester, Minn.; Kim Hubbard, Spokane, Wash.; John Mancini, Sterling Heights, Mich.; and Peter Jacobson, Dayton, Ohio.

The course proved to be tough for the public links golfers and even the leaders had their share of bogeys along with their birdies.

A second 18 holes of qualifying will be played Tuesday and the top 64 players will advance to four days of match play competition starting Wednesday.

Sasse, a restaurant manager who only plays a few rounds of golf a week, shot a 2 under par 33 on the front nine that included an eagle on the par 5 fourth hole. But he followed it with a two over par 38 on the backside. His holes included bogeys on No. 1 and No. 10.

"I always start good," he said with a laugh.

Sasse, 22, works 60 or more hours a week and only gets to play a few times, a plight shared by most of the public links players.

The youngest player in the tournament is Mitchell Murata, 14, of Kaneohe, Hawaii, who shot a 77.

"I started playing when I was six years old," he said. "My father is a trick shot artist and club pro and he's been teaching me."

The top 64 will qualify for the match play competition which begins with 18 holes on Wednesday.

There are double rounds on Thursday and Friday and a 36-hole windup for the last two players on Saturday. Each qualifying section for the tournament has a three-man team represented in the tournament and the low team score after the qualifying rounds will win the 51st team championship.

Lincoln's Junior Olympic organization work hailed by AAU

By Randy York
Staff Sports Writer

Lincoln's lure as a national sports host probably can be boiled down to one word — organization.

Mason Bell, director of sports development for the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU), said Monday "Lincoln's planning for the National Junior Olympics is so far ahead that we could probably run these multisport championships tomorrow if we had to."

Bell, in Lincoln for a press conference to promote the nationally televised event Aug. 12-14 on the NU campus, said Lincoln has more than a central location and excellent facilities to land the Junior Olympic championships.

"Lincoln has two other very important things to offer — enthusiasm and a willingness to work," Bell said. "That's a tribute to the community."

It's also a tribute to Lincoln physician Richard Hammer, the National Junior Olympic general chairman, who has developed a reputation for solid organization of AAU-sponsored events.

The typically low key Hammer, however, wasn't prepared to accept the bouquet and relax the rest of the summer.

Even though organization is functioning smoothly, he indicated there is still work to be done before more than 1,000 athletes from all 50 states invade Lincoln to compete in seven sports — track and field, gymnastics, diving, wrestling, trampolining and tumbling, judo and synchronized swimming.

Hammer referred to Pat Mulligan, finance committee chairman who is seeking to raise $14,000 more in his $22,000 community budget goal launched three weeks ago.

Although Sears is financing the massive event, Lincoln businesses are being asked to donate money for some facility rental, equipment purchases and officials' fees.

Hammer stressed the bulk of the Junior Olympics administration is volunteer. "We will have anywhere between 40 to 60 volunteer officials for each of the seven sports," he said, adding that those wishing to donate time can contact him or the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce office.

Dick White, president-elect of the Chamber of Commerce, noted "the people of Lincoln have a long and loyal record of support for all athletics. Of course it's economically rewarding for us. Typically, for every dollar spent promoting $3.94, as many as $10 comes back into the community."

Bill Thurston, chairman of the chamber's sports and recreation committee, believes Lincoln's opportunity to host its second National Junior Olympics in four years "is based on our bid to host all seven sports while other cities submitted bids to host separate events."

Plans for Friday night's opening ceremonies on Aug. 12 are almost complete, according to Hammer. Invitations to participate have been extended to such former Junior Olympians as Harvey Glance (sprint relay gold medalist at Montreal last summer) and Phil Boggs and Jenni Chandler (gold medal divers in the '76 Olympics).

"This is a tremendous opportunity to watch some of the future stars of the 1980 Olympics in Moscow," Hammer said. In previous years such Olympic gold medal winners as Mark Spitz, Bob Seagren, Don Schollander, Rafer Johnson, Bill Toomey, Donna DeVerona, John Kinsella and Wilma Rudolph were also Junior Olympic champions.

It also will give Nebraskans an opportunity to see how such native athletes as Creighton Prep hurdler Randy Brooks and Omaha's Burke distance runner Paul Schultz stack up nationally.

Bell said he hopes Lincoln will support the events with big crowds like it did in 1974. Crowds are important to an athlete's performance. A first class full house will usually mean better performances.

Tickets are available at all Sears stores in Nebraska and at NBC and First National Banks in Lincoln.

Tickets also can be secured by writing the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce at 1221 N. St. (68506 zip code).

Bell announced Monday that in addition to NBC's three-hour live television coverage Aug. 13 and 14, Universal Studios is preparing a 28-minute film on the Junior Olympics for national distribution.

Horse Racing

The Texas Thoroughbred Breeders Association, the largest organization of its kind, has arranged for a payoff of $1 million to the consigner of a horse which wins horse racing's Triple Crown.

Sales Director Tom Russell announced that Lloyds of London will guarantee the sum of $1 million to the consigner of a yearling auctioned at the organization's annual sales goes on to win the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes in 1979.

The auction will take place at the Houston Astrodome Oct. 21-23.

Other sports

The San Diego Chargers announced the signing of quarterback James Harris to a five-year contract.

The Philadelphia Phillies announced Monday that Cal Emery has resigned as manager of the Oklahoma City farm club for personal reasons.

The New York Knicks signed their 1977 second-round college draft choices, Glen Gondrezick of Nevada-Las Vegas and Toby Knight of Notre Dame.

Colorado Rockies' owner Jack Vickers, who lost a reported $2.7 million last year in his first season in the National Hockey League, said Monday he has received three offers to sell the club.

The featherweight 6-foot yacht Merlin smashed the previous Trans-Pacific Yacht Race record time by almost a full day Sunday, scudding across the Diamond Head finish line 2,225 miles from Los Angeles in eight days, 11 hours, one minute and 46 seconds.

The 10th Maccabiah Games, drawing some 3,000 competitors from 33 lands, open Tuesday night.

The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce said it agreed with Mayor Maynard Jackson that Atlanta would run too many risks if it tried to host the 1984 Olympics.

Dodgers' Garvey sets vote mark

New York (UPI) — First baseman Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers became the first player ever to receive 4 million votes in the all-star balloting as he was elected to the National League starting team Monday for the fourth year in a row.

Four members of the Cincinnati Reds join Garvey in the starting lineup: second baseman Joe Morgan, shortstop Dave Concepcion, catcher Johnny Bench and outfielder George Foster. Ron Cey of Los Angeles will be at third while Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia and Dave Parker of Pittsburgh complete the outfield.

The National League squad will face the best of the American League in the 49th annual all-star game Tuesday night, July 19, at Yankee Stadium. The American League starters will be announced late Tuesday.

With the exception of Parker, all the players have started before. In addition to Garvey, Bench, Morgan, Concepcion, Foster and Luzinski were starters in last year's contest in Philadelphia.

A record number of ballots were cast by fans from all over the country, with 12,562,476 votes tabulated, exceeding the record set in 1976 by more than 4 million.

Five National League players surpassed the 3 million mark in votes, a milestone which had been reached only three times before this year. Garvey led with 4,277,735, followed by Morgan (3,309,754), Bench (3,262,880), Cey (3,102,186) and Concepcion (3,098,750).

Only Morgan, Reggie Jackson and Minnesota's Rod Carew ever had reached the 3 million mark before.

Garvey ran away with the voting at first base, with Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell finishing a distant second, receiving less than 1,500,000 votes. Garvey was elected as a starter for the first time in 1974 due to a massive write-in campaign, and wound up winning the MVP award for the game.

Bench is the only player to be elected as a starter in each of the eight years in which the fans have been voting. He easily outdistanced Ted Simmons of St. Louis, who received 2,096,524 votes.

The closest races were at shortstop and third base, with Concepcion beating out Philadelphia's Larry Bowa (2,449,944) and Cey receiving more votes than Cincinnati's Pete Rose (2,523,723). It will be the third successive start for Concepcion.

Ex-Rangers villain now Mets' golden boy

New York (UPI) — Lenny Randle has turned the whole thing around for himself, and the most remarkable thing about that is he did it all in less than 90 days.

Right now, he's the Mets' most popular player. Also the most exciting.

Almost from the first day he reported to them as a "marked man" last April 29, Randle has performed so outstandingly both offensively and defensively and shown such a genuinely warm, friendly disposition that hardly anyone associates him anymore with the same individual who punched out former Texas manager Frank Lucchesi and put him in the hospital this spring.

When Randle first came to the Mets from the Rangers, Willie Mays felt the one thing he needed more than anything else was a friend. Nobody asked Mays to volunteer, but he did. He took Randle around to different places, helped him in his new surroundings and gave him a piece of advice.

"Number one, keep your mouth shut," he told Randle. "Go out and bust your butt. They'll give you a chance here, and as long as you go out there on the field and play well, don't worry about the fans or the writers. They'll be fair with you. Forget about what happened with the Rangers. You're not the only one who ever blew up. I did, too, once. With Clyde King when I was with the Giants and he was the manager. But I pulled myself together. King said I wasn't gonna play in a series with Houston and then put my name back in the lineup. I wanted to know why. He said some things to me in the dugout and I said some things back to him. Chub Feeney told me to go and apologize. I felt I wasn't wrong but I apologized. Look, Lenny, in this game, in this life, you have to bend because if you don't, they're gonna bend you."

Pasted on the back wall of his locker at Shea Stadium are four of the many letters Randle has received. Virtually all are supportive in their tone, letting him know how much pleasure he is bringing the letter writers by the way he's playing for the Mets.

"People give me strength and encouragement," he says. Randle always will be remembered for the Lucchesi episode. That much he realizes. By nature, he is a mild person, not at all belligerent. The last previous fight he remembers being involved in was in elementary school in Compton, Calif.

"I was in the third grade and a bunch of us were playing softball," he recalls, smiling. "This fellow was in the sixth grade and he tried to take the field from us. I said to him, 'Hey, that's not right what you're doing. You wouldn't want us to do it to you.' He grabbed me by the shirt and said, 'Who do you think you are?' When he grabbed me, I picked him up and we scuffled awhile. It was all over with pretty quick."

Randle leads all the Mets with his .309 batting average and some of the defensive plays he has made been making around third base border on pure disbelief. Like the diving half-gainer he made on Chris Speier's sacrifice bunt attempt in foul territory during Saturday night's contest with Montreal.

"I've seen some great catches in my time, but I never saw one like that," offers Mets' manager Joe Torre.

Randle made the catch in the 12th inning. He then came up in the 17th and delivered a two-run homer to snap the Mets' nine-game losing string.

One of the reasons so many Mets' fans relate to Randle is because of the way he relates to them. During a rain delay of nearly two hours at Shea Stadium the other night, most of the Mets' players went into the clubhouse for a smoke, a soft drink or merely to listen to music on the radio.

With the rain pouring down, Randle sat in the stands and talked with some of the fans. Some asked him for his autograph and he signed patiently — in the rain and all. A lady, seeing he was getting wet, offered to protect him with her umbrella.

One youngster, around eight or nine, boasted his friend alongside him was an all-star high school player in Brooklyn.

"Why don't you give me your autograph?" Randle asked the boy who was so proud of his friend.

"Are you serious?" the kid said, his eyes nearly bulging out. "You mean you want my signature?"

"Why not," said Randle. "You're a star, too."

The boy signed his name on the inside bill of Randle's cap. Randle does that a lot. He also has signatures on his glove put there by fans.

"I don't like them to feel we're simply symbols and objects," says the Mets' switch hitting third baseman. "People kind of put ballplayers on a pedestal and don't look at us as human beings. I just don't think that's right."

Loss doesn't dim Slew's glow

New York (AP) — Seattle Slew's picture will appear in national magazines as an endorsement for men's fashions.

Of course, the Triple Crown winner will be wearing only shoes. The clothes will be modeled by co-owner Mickey Taylor.

On and on it goes for Seattle Slew, the 3-year-old colt whose name is a registered trademark and copyright.

His image is connected with T-shirts, bumper stickers, pictures, lithographs, feed, a hair clipper for horses, an equine X ray machine, etc. And there are demands for personal appearances and discussions about a two-hour movie for television.

And all this despite Seattle Slew's first loss—a fourth-place drubbing in the Swaps Stakes July 3 at Hollywood Park.

It amazes Bill Gearn, president of Product Sales Associates Inc., of West Hempstead, N.Y., which represents Seattle Slew, Inc., the commercial branch of the colt. Slew, the racehorse, is owned by Wooden Horse Investments Corp.

"I'm keeping my fingers crossed," Gearn said a few days before Seattle Slew raced in the Swaps.

A few days after the shock of defeat had worn off, Gearn was saying:

"It is absolutely unbelievable. We had an earthquake and not one person said they didn't want to go through with the arrangements."

In fact, offers are still coming in.

"We have an agreement with a company with sales over $400 million," Gearn said of the contract to endorse close. He said he couldn't disclose the name but that the advertisements "will be carried by 15 major books (magazines) and seen by 80 million people."

Gearn also was excited about the proposal for a movie about Slew.

Slew made his first non-race public appearance Friday night and Saturday at Longacres in suburban Seattle—Mickey and Karen Taylor live in White Swan, Wash.—when he appeared between races in a Golden Gallop, with part of the proceeds going to cancer research.

Meanwhile, Slew's other line of work—racing—might be delayed until the fall. The owners and trainer Billy Turner indicated last Friday in Seattle that it would be several months before the colt returns to competition.

Dolphins eye bid for Chuck Foreman

Miami (AP) — The Miami Dolphins are interested in bidding for Minnesota Vikings' star running back Chuck Foreman, Coach Don Shula says.

And Foreman says he is interested in playing for Miami. The only catch is the Vikings, who don't want to lose their All-Pro running back.

Foreman, 26, is involved in a salary dispute with the Vikings, claiming he is underpaid at $85,000 a year. He said he will not finish out the remaining two years on his contract unless he is given a raise.

A former University of Miami player and a Miami resident in the off-season, Foreman said he likes Miami and wouldn't mind playing for the Dolphins.

"I wouldn't be living here if I didn't like the city. I'd love to play here," he said. "I'm home. If it came about, I certainly wouldn't object. But I don't anticipate it happening."

Foreman is due to appear at the Viking camp July 26. "The day I'm supposed to report is the day I disappear."

Foreman said. "I'll be leaving the city, getting off by myself. I might just get in my car and head west, I don't know. Nobody will know where I am."

Although Foreman wants the raise, he says money isn't the most important thing to him.

"I'm not asking for the world, nothing ridiculous. If it means that much to them to give me a raise, well, to hell with it. I'm not getting on my knees to beg anybody. I've proven myself time and time again."

The Vikings have made the playoffs every year since Foreman joined the team in 1973. Before that the Vikings were a 7-7 team.

The Dolphins will bid for Foreman whenever the Vikings are willing to listen, Shula said.

"If they are interested in doing something, I hope they give us the opportunity to make an offer for him," Shula said. "I understand their problem. I'm sure they want Foreman to play for them. But if it doesn't work out, we're interested."

Recent events focus prison problems

By J.L. Schmidt
Star Staff Writer

Joe Vitek, head of the Nebraska Department of Correctional Services, describes his job as a "profession of many banana peels."

"I may step on one and slip, or I might get pushed, but whatever I do, I'll be accountable for my mistakes," he said.

Vitek was describing recent problems at the state penitentiary, problems which have kept him under fire and on the scene since July 2. Monday he outlined the details.

In a nutshell:

July 2 — Inmate Donald Routhier apparently hangs himself in his cell in the adjustment center at the pen. His body is not discovered for six to nine hours. Two guards and a prison psychologist are subsequently suspended while investigation of the incident continues.

Last Thursday — Papers are filed to commit inmate Robert Bessent to the Lincoln Regional Center for testing to determine if he is mentally ill. Bessent was Routhier's accomplice in an abortive takeover of the Lincoln city jail and, according to jail officials, may be suicidal.

Inmate Shawn Sparks dies possibly from electrocution when he touched a fan in his cell at the pen.

Friday — More than 100 inmates stage a protest in the recreation yard of the pen and refuse to return to their cells. Vitek talks to a group representing the inmates and the demonstration ends in the wee hours Saturday.

Saturday — Inmate Ray Kenton, 27, is stabbed by three fellow inmates. He was reported in good condition Monday afternoon at a Lincoln hospital. Three inmates are being held in connection with the incident.

Sunday — Inmate Lee Eddie Collins, 37, is stabbed by a fellow inmate and treated and released from a local hospital. The other inmate is being held in detention.

Vitek said that prison officials were aware of the possibility of a protest, probably linked with Sparks' death, about mid-morning Friday. That protest, originally scheduled for the noon-hour, didn't materialize until late afternoon when 100 inmates refused to leave the recreation yard.

"Another 500 inmates did return to their cells," he said, and those remaining in the yard participated in a form of "disorganized organization, responding to hand signals from a small group of leaders."

He added that he was "still of the opinion that some used the Sparks' death to further their own causes," which were outlined in discussions with representatives of the protesters after the demonstration.

Vitek said he was concerned by comments from several state senators, published in newspaper accounts Sunday, that criticized Vitek and Warden Robert Parratt for being callous.

"We try to meet with people and their concerns. We are human, we agonize. We don't wish to create the problems that come our way," he said.

Vitek added that he is still supportive of Parratt. "I have seen a lot of professional growth in the man and I have the utmost confidence in him."

"Joe Vitek isn't trying to build an empire out of the corrections department. We need a spirit of cooperation,"

Not all of the problems of the system are because of population, "but we are overcrowded. We're stacking prisoners in there like cordwood. People tell me the problem will go away, but judges keep sending us prisoners," he said.

Of some 57 major corrections directors in the United States, Vitek with three years under his belt, is the "seventh or eighth with the highest seniority," he added. "What about all those others? We're all under fire."

What's being done to solve the problems? Vitek said he has plans on the drawing board for a new facility, or the remodeling of the old one. "If anybody knows a better way to treat the problem, I want to hear it," he added.

In addition, inmates are pitching in to help clean up the prison. Incentive pay for inmates who do the "dirty work," in the kitchen, etc. is also being studied. The governor has approved some of the measures. Personnel will be improved and existing personnel are being utilized to the fullest, Vitek said.

Diller school board recall election appears blocked

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Diller — Only three days away, a scheduled recall election aimed at unseating all six school board members here apparently has been scuttled.

The board itself pulled a surprise maneuver while meeting in regular session Monday night. By a 4-0 vote with one member absent and a newly appointed member abstaining, a June 6 resolution officially authorizing the election was rescinded.

A substitute resolution alleged that petitions circulating against the board were defective in that they "failed to state reasons for the members' removal." The anti-board petitions, filed May 9, accused each of the six members of "willful neglect of duty and willful maladministration in office."

Lyle Koenig of Hebron, appointed Monday night to replace Ralph Fischer of Beatrice as school attorney, told a reporter he feels the move "definitely will halt the elections."

Although the petitions were filed with the Jefferson County clerk, he said statutes provide authorization by the board itself.

The attempted ousting of the board stems from its attempted firing of Principal Clarence Rost, who apparently saved his job last week via a district court injunction. Judge William Rist ruled that the board had acted improperly in failing to give Rost a hearing.

Monday night's meeting, scheduled by public notice for 8 p.m., was delayed 40 minutes while the board met behind closed doors. Another closed session came 20 minutes later and some 35 spectators waited another 80 minutes while candidates were interviewed for the vacated superintendency.

The resignation of Superintendent Vernon Haneman was officially approved Monday night. Also resigning was board member Larry Germer, who was replaced by Harold Logan Jr.

Supervision faulted in inmate death

Breakdowns in communications and supervision may have led to the death of 22-year-old Donald Routhier at the Nebraska Penal Complex on July 2, according to Joe Vitek, head of the Department of Correctional Services.

Vitek updated the press Monday on the investigations into recent activities at the prison. Two guards and a prison psychologist have been suspended as a result of the hanging death of Routhier, termed a suicide, in the prison's adjustment center early July 2. The suspensions came after it was learned that Routhier's body wasn't found for a period of six to nine hours.

One of the suspended guards has resigned, Vitek said, and the other has expressed concern that an expedient decision be made in his case. "There's been too much activity (an electrocution death of another inmate, a rebellion by 100 inmates and two stabbings) since the suicide to complete my investigation," Vitek added.

A contributing factor to the supervision problem was the inmates "common practice" of covering the windows in the back of their cells. Those windows are used by guards in an inspection tunnel to keep tabs on the prisoners in the adjustment center (commonly called solitary or the hole), Vitek explained.

The problem has occurred in the past, but has always been corrected, he added. The communications breakdown came when guards and supervisors knew of the situation, the window covering, but "failed to report it or take action," he said.

Warden Robert Parratt received information from the city jail last week that Routhier's accomplice in an abortive takeover of that facility on June 27 (Robert Bessent, 23) had tried to commit suicide at the jail. A special guard was placed at Bessent's cell and he was later transferred to the Lincoln Regional Center to undergo psychiatric testing.

Bessent and fellow inmate Marvin Herheardt, 32, told investigators that they had "jokingly" talked about a triple suicide before Routhier's death, Vitek said. Neither said they thought Routhier had been "serious" about the conversation, he added.

Vitek said it would be impossible to tell how long it will take to complete the investigation into the Routhier death, but he promised to "expedite it to the best of my abilities."

Committees appointed to evaluate penal plans

Seven teams of state senators and citizens were appointed Monday to evaluate programs for inmates at the Nebraska Penal Complex.

The Legislature's Executive Board approved a list of 35 names proposed by Sen. Steve Fowler to serve on the evaluation teams. Each team will have two senators and three members from the business and professional community as well as two additional members to be named later by the governor.

The teams will examine existing programs for inmate labor and recreation, health care, chemical dependency, community-based programs, staff training and program planning.

"It certainly couldn't come at a more appropriate moment," said Sen. Roland Luedtke, Unicameral speaker, in reference to the recent deaths and demonstration at the penitentiary.

Other senators also expressed concern over the recent incidents in voting 9-0 to approve the nominees. Fowler said that all the nominees had been contacted and agreed to serve on the teams.

Named to the study teams were:

Inmate Labor — Sens. Don Dworak, Columbus and Robert Murphy, S. Sioux City; Jason Andrew, division of rehabilitation services, Lincoln; Ralph Crowl, state Council of Electrical Workers, Omaha; and Joseph Sabotocki, Becton-Dickinson Co., Columbus.

Inmate Recreation — Sens. Shirley Marsh, Lincoln and John Savage, Omaha; Charles Cunningham, Dunhill, Inc., Lincoln; Jay Davis, and Gene Huey, both of the UNL athletic department.

Comprehensive Health Care — Sens. Richard Lewis, Holbrook and Jo Ann Maxey, Lincoln; Bob Broom, Omaha Legal Aid Society; Larry Renicker, Lincoln General Hospital assistant administrator; and Gina Washburn, director, Lincoln Rape Crisis Center.

Community-Based Programs — Sens. Gerald Koch of Ralston and Roland Luedtke of Lincoln; Samuel Caniglia, Douglas County District Judge; Robert J. Kutak, Omaha attorney; and the Rev. Gordon Simmons, First Lutheran Church, Lincoln.

Chemical Dependency Programs — Sens. Wally Barnett, Lincoln and Jack Mills, Big Springs; Harry C. Waverly, Adams County judge; Kandra Hahn, Lancaster County District Court clerk; and K. Lee Wilson, chemical dependency unit, Methodist Hospital, Omaha.

Staff Training — Sens. Richard D. Marvel, Hastings and Neil Simon, Omaha; Gary Anderson, McCook; the Rev. Elizabeth Beames, Sentenary United Methodist Church, Beatrice, and Karen Butler, Lincoln League of Women Voters.

Program Planning — Sens. Steve Fowler, Lincoln and Barry Reutzel, Fremont; Lyn Martin, Mental Retardation Services director, Lincoln; Robert Aron, district judge, Alliance, and Vincent Webb, UNO Criminal Justice Department.

Jim Miller, 32, of Ford Wayne, Ind., is traveling the country with a 12-foot, 100-pound cross. His message is, "Get off the clock." Miller carries his bedding, clothes and other personal effects inside the hollow cross.

Group to study patrol work

Eight members of the Legislature have been appointed to a committee to investigate the operations of the Criminal and Drug Divisions of the Nebraska State Patrol.

Acting on a resolution passed on the last day of the legislative session, the Unicameral's Executive Board gave the investigative body all powers of a standing committee, including subpoena power.

"There's a lot there to look into," said Sen. Roland Luedtke, speaker of the Legislature. "Somebody better take hold of the situation and look into it."

Sen. Douglas Bereuter of Utica said reports of problems within the patrol could turn into a hot issue between the Legislature and the executive branch of the state government.

Named to the committee were Bereuter and Sens. Steve Fowler of Lincoln, Ernest Chambers of Omaha, John DeCamp of Neligh, Loran Schmitt of Bellwood, Don Dworak of Columbus, William Nichol of Scottsbluff and Barry Reutzel of Fremont.

Officials to check complaints about Omaha office building

United Press International

The Executive Board of the Legislative Council Monday directed the state ombudsman to look into complaints that working conditions for state employees are intolerable at an Omaha office building owned by The Jado Inc.

Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers asked the board to investigate allegations made by State Labor Department employees, who work in the building at 5405 Cedar St.

Chambers said he received a petition during the weekend that contained 83 signatures of employees who complained about inadequate ventilation, heating and air conditioning in the building.

In directing the ombudsman to investigate the complaint the board said Gov. J. James Exon and the Labor Department must be told that an investigation is underway.

Omaha Sen. Larry Stoney, who supported turning the complaints over to the ombudsman, said all avenues of appeal must be exhausted before the board gets directly involved in the issue.

Omaha Sen. John Savage said the building owner, whom he identified as Michael Jackson, was charging too much money for the facility.

The lease agreement "was a ripoff by a friend of the governor," Savage said. "I don't think it (the building) is adequate for what they're paying for it."

In addition, Savage said he has checked the condition of the building and agrees with the petitioners that it is inadequate. But, Savage said, when an effort was made to find another building, "the governor wrote it off."

Exon "put the whitewash" on the effort to find a new building, Savage said.

Public power study is upheld

The Legislature's Executive Board voted Monday to continue with the $50,000 study of the state's public power industry.

Adam Kubik, director of the study, told the senators that industry representatives are co-operating with the study, although they have balked over some proposed methods of funding.

The study is the second in a series of three planned to examine public power in Nebraska. The first, which cost $30,000 and took a year and a half to complete, examined the Nebraska and Omaha Public Power Districts and pointed out inefficiencies between those systems.

The present study is an in-house examination of public power that will propose the most efficient way to study the system and compile a list of problems to be studied in the final venture.

The last study could cost as much as $1 million, according to Holbrook Sen. Richard Lewis who heads the Legislature's power study subcommittee. Lewis said he doesn't think the Legislature or the people are ready to pay for the last study out of general tax revenues.

Kubik said the power industry could enter into a contract with the Legislature to finance the study, as provided by state law. But the leadership of the present study committee has unofficially opposed such an idea, he added.

Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler questioned the power industry's ability to conduct an in-house study to pinpoint problems.

The board voted 6-2 to continue the contract to finish the study after several senators noted that a failure to do so would stop all studies of the public power industry.
